GARNER GIVES PLAN TO RAISE U. S. REVENUE

Democrats Expect to Boost
Total by 200 Million
Without Tax Increase

WOULD BAR LOOPHOLES
Party Program of Taxation
Still Incomplete, House
Speaker States

Washington—(P)—Speaker Garner said today the Democrats expect to raise $200,000,000 in revenue without additional levies of taxes, as one method of meeting the treasury deficit.

The increased revenue, as outlined by him, would be obtained by the enactment of amendments to existing laws to stop loopholes through which taxes are evaded.

This is one phase of the study the Texas representative conducted last summer into present revenue legislation, with a view to perfecting the revenue law.

At a conference with newspapermen, Garner said some of the holes in the law were left intentionally, while others had not been. He declined to divulge what they were but it is known that he has made an exhaustive study of many current decisions on tax appeal cases.

Asked directly whether the Democrats had formulated their tax program, Garner replied:

"If you are talking about the organization, we have not. Some different individuals have compiled their own programs and have even gone so far as to put them down on paper, but there is no agreement."

Plans Unknown

"No one can tell what the 25 men on the ways and means committee will report to the house a month away, because no one knows," he said.

Reminded that Chairman Collier, of the ways and means committee, and Representative Rainey of Illinois, the party leader, had differed on several proposals to increase federal revenue, the Texan reiterated that they were voicing their own opinions.

The senate house Democratic policy committee, Garner stressed, has decided yet on a tax increase program. It will take that matter up along with tariffs at a meeting to be called next week.

Garner predicted the Democratic house would pass a tariff bill this session, but added that "I won't tell what kind of a measure it will be."

Utilities Measure
Back in Committee

Madison—(P)—The Loomis utility regulation bill requiring all public utilities to pay the costs of any investigations concerning them was referred back to the senate committee today by a vote of 14 to 13.

Last week the senate engrossed the measure when Lieut. Gov. Henry Huber broke a 15-15 tie vote. It came up again today on a motion for reconsideration and at the request of Senator J. H. Carroll, Glendora, a majority voted the bill back to committee.

Famous Photographer
Is Dead in Montana

Billings, Mont.—(P)—L. A. Hoff, one of the most famous photographers of pioneer life in Montana, died here today of a heart attack. Among his more widely known pictures are those showing Theodore Roosevelt as a rancher in this region and those of army officers, scouts, Indian chiefs and cattlemen.

Quits Hearings

Washington—(P)—Describing attempts to change the prohibition laws as "a ridiculous waste of effort," Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, today withdrew from a senate judiciary sub-committee named to hold hearings on the subject.

Debt Accord Is Expected By Bankers

New York—(P)—Despite the differences of opinion between London and Paris on reparations and allied debts, leading bankers today predicted an accord within two months.

Europe was too sensible, one authority said, to let internal differences stand in the way of measures which were vital to world recovery. England and France, in this present state of viewpoint, seemed certain to get together on essential points now at issue prior to the forthcoming reparations conference next month.

Present European disputes, one high authority said, resembled a family quarrel and this country, he added, would do well to keep out.

Continued European criticism of the refusal of the United States to consider debt cancellation, has had the effect of solidifying American sentiment on that point, it was said.

An internationally known banker who has been a warm friend of both England and France expressed his private opinion that France could substantially reduce American debt regardless of whether German reparations payments were suspended. England, because of the depreciated pound, would find the problem harder, he said.

Washington—(P)—Ogden Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, said today the United States had not been asked to sit in even unofficially at the European reparations conference to be held in January and would not attend if asked.

MARSHAL CHANG MAY EVACUATE CITY, REPORT

Eugene Chen Becomes Foreign Minister of New Chinese Government

Shanghai—(P)—Reports from Tientsin today said it was widely believed there that Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang had decided to evacuate Chinchow.

Chinchow, Manchuria—(P)—Japanese airplanes flew back and forth over this city tonight, and, although they dropped no bombs, the frightened people expected an attack any moment.

Driving westward from Tientsin, the Japanese column which entered Tawa yesterday captured Panshanhsien today after an aerial bombardment.

At the same time a brigade started from Mukden to Hsinmintun, a movement interpreted as the beginning of an advance down the Peking-Mukden railway to join the force from Tientsin at Kowpangze, a junction more than half way from Mukden to Chinchow.

Down at Nanking Eugene Chen, a leader of the Cantonese faction, was made foreign minister in the new Chinese government headed by Lin Sen and of nine other cabinet appointments six were given to members of the Canton group and three to the Nanking faction.

Reports from Tientsin said it was believed there that Marshal Chang Hsueh, was preparing to withdraw his Chinese army from Chinchow to a point south of the great wall.

PREPARE FOR HEARINGS ON WATER PROJECTS

Washington—(P)—New waterway projects costing tens of millions of dollars will be included by a house committee in a general bill for consideration by congress.

Chairman Mansfield has called the rivers and harbors committee to begin hearings Jan. 7, on improvements endorsed by the war department engineers since the last rivers and harbors act of July 2, 1930.

Bandits Terrorize Small Community In Minnesota; Stores Looted In Raid

Pine River, Minn.—(P)—Bandits terrorized this community of 410 persons for two hours early today, slugged the constable, menaced other residents, and looted several stores.

Using the ruse they were on official business for Sheriff F. E. Little of Brainerd, six men, one of whom carried a machine gun, went to the Frank Marsh home at 3 o'clock a. m. Marsh was forced to direct them to the home of Constable Ole Hougward. He resisted their efforts to hold him and was floored by a blow as a raider struck him with his gun, slugged the constable, menaced other residents, and looted several stores.

When he revived, he was forced to accompany the group to the Horrigan drug store, where Mr. and Mrs.

Benjamin Horrigan and Mrs. Horrigan's sister live.

The Horrigan was forced to open the cash drawer of the drug store. The thieves took $200 in cash and then left a guard with Mrs. Horrigan and her sister, while they marched Marsh Hougward and Horrigan to the Harold Hill home.

Hill and his wife were ordered from their beds and lined up against a wall.

The robbers took Mrs. Hill's $150 diamond ring and Hill's long hunting rifle.

Adding Mr. and Mrs. Hill to their squad of prisoners, the raiders forced Hill to open his hardware store, and safe and took $200 and some jewelry.

Then the bandits marched their prisoners back to the Horrigan home, locked the four men in the basement and the three women in a bedroom, then leaped into their automobile and fled toward Brainerd.

Although the victims counted only six in the raiding party one of its members was heard to say "you better not try any rough stuff with us because we have nine men in our gang."

Hill said "they were either crazed by liquor or all doped up." One who guarded Mrs. Horrigan and her sister remarked he was "selling baskets for the poor in Minneapolis last year but now we're all out of jobs."

Birmingham, Ala.—(P)—Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer of Chicago, announced today he would withdraw immediately from the Scottsboro case unless given a free rein to handle the defense of the eight Negroes condemned to death for attacks on two white girls.

He said he would leave for Chicago at noon unless attorneys other than those representing the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People agreed to leave the case in his hands.

The announcement followed a conference between Darrow, his associate, Arthur Garfield Hays of New York, and George M. Chambliss, Chattanooga attorney, who was employed to represent the Negroes by the International Labor Defense.

Chambliss presented affidavits to the Alabama Supreme court yesterday signed by the Negroes and their relatives that he and four others had been retained as defense counsel, but no mention was made of Darrow and Hays.

FEDERAL AID URGED BEFORE SENATE GROUP

Welfare Leader Sees Necessity for Appropriations in Some States

Washington—(P)—Strong support for the movement to appropriate from the federal treasury for unemployment relief came today from a welfare leader who has been cooperating with President Hoover to meet the problem through voluntary effort.

Linton B. Swift, executive secretary to the Family Welfare Association of America, testified to a senate committee today that federal aid was needed by some states that could not otherwise meet their relief needs.

Federal appropriations to supplement local unemployment relief also were recommended to a senate committee today by Paul L. Kellogg, editor of the Welfare Magazine survey.

Testifying on bills to appropriate from $250,000,000 to $375,000,000, he said the city of Toledo presented "an extreme case of community distress."

His biggest corporation, he said, had a payroll of 30,000 in 1929 which dropped to 2,000 or 4,000 in 1930.

Toledo, Kellogg added, "is an extreme case of irresponsible industrial management." He warned that the peak of the relief load would come after the turn in conditions had come.

Attacks on federal aid as a "dole," he said, were "merely echoes of propaganda put out in high places, resulting from a combination of dope, emotion and class interest."

He defined the dole as a "catchword being employed to confuse the public."

Swift testified that relief needs have grown by leaps and bounds.

There was a 215 per cent increase in relief extended by member agencies from 1916 to 1925, he said, and this increase continued up to 1929.

Three times as many families were accepted in 1931, he added, as in 1929, and many other applications were pouring in but were rejected because of lack of funds.

"Even if business conditions improve 25 per cent relief needs will be at least as great next winter as this, if not greater," Swift said.

"We are still dealing in some cases with the results of family disintegration caused by the depression of 1921,"

Wins on Demand

Oklahoma City, Okla.—(P)—Governor Murray won his demand for an early Democratic state convention today when the party's state executive committee fixed Feb. 20 for the meeting to be held in Oklahoma City. The action was taken after a concerted effort to postpone the meeting was withdrawn.

Fear Flood As Gale Whips High Tides

London—(P)—A temible gale whipped up high tides in the Thames today and left dwellers along its shores fearful of a repetition of the disastrous floods of 1928.

The storm was also charged with partial responsibility for the loss of several steamer's lives in a collision with the steamer American Trader and a tug.

Nine men were believed to have drowned as a result of the collision which occurred in the lower river, in what is known as "Galloo's Reach." The tug sank immediately.

The gale and the spring tides raised furious seas along the coast and snow and hail accompanied the wind which blew hardest in the north.

A northwester gale lashed Morsey estuary, rolling up tremendous waves which prevented a number of ships from leaving their docks.

Heavy snowstorms occurred in Scotland, north Ireland and Wales. Police watches were posted along the Thames to warn the inhabitants of the territory to quit their houses if it became necessary.

That danger is now believed to be past, however.

FEAR IS DROWNED

Helsingfors, Finland—(P)—Fifteen men were feared to have been drowned last night in a shipping disaster in a heavy snowstorm.

The freighter Iken ran aground off this port. Twelve of the crew were saved and nine others were taken aboard a salvage vessel which later was reported lost with its own crew of six.

HOOVER MAPS PROPOSALS IN ECONOMY DRIVE

Sees Consolidations as Means for Cutting Down Federal Expenses

OUTLINES HIS PROGRAM
President Prepares to Send Special Message to Congress on Issue

Washington—(P)—The administration plans a new drive for consolidation of government departments and bureaus as a means of reducing federal expenditures. The president made the plan public today at a press conference.

Within a month or two after congress has acted upon his emergency program, he will transmit a special message urging various consolidations.

Among them he named transfer of the shipping board into the department of commerce; a grouping under one head of the government's educational activities, creation of a bureau of construction to handle all federal building activities except for the army and navy; a combination of federal conservation activities and similar combining of public health efforts.

The text of the president's statement follows:

"The most constructive direction for economy in federal expenditure beyond a right reduction of appropriations and the resistance opposition to new appropriations, lies in the consolidation of government bureaus and general reorganization of the federal government."

Emphasizes Necessity

"I have recommended this reorganization in public addresses, reports and messages to congress throughout the past 10 years."

"I particularly emphasized this necessity as the basis of constructive economy in my message to the second session of the 71st congress. I again referred to it in the message to the third session of that congress, and in my message to the present congress I again traversed the subject."

"Some of my recommendations have been carried out, the most important one being the consolidation of all veterans activities into the veterans administration. As a result, General Hines reports that we are saving somewhere from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year in this service alone."

Further Economy

"In addition to the actual economy by concentrated administration and elimination of overlap, further great economies would be brought about through the curtailment of the self-expanding capacity of scattered bureaus which could be much better controlled if they were grouped together. It would enable policies in connection with certain government activities to be better developed and better directed."

"The subject is an old one and now that economy absolutely must be the first order in government it is an appropriate time for congress to take up the question and bring it to conclusion. Such action would complete a major accomplishment of the present session of congress."

The mimeographed statement president spoke contained excerpts from various of his messages to congress dealing with the proposed consolidations.

Speaking of the transfer of the shipping board to the department of commerce, the president said in one message: "There should be created in that department a position of assistant secretary for merchant marine, under whom this work and the several bureaus having to do with merchant marine may be grouped."

Duties of Board

It was his idea that the shipping board should be made a regulatory body also in an advisory capacity on loans and policies, with its regulatory powers extended to coastwise shipping and rates and services upon the inland waterways.

Of the creation of a public works administration the president's idea was that by combining all federal building under one head "great economies, sounder policies, more effective coordination to employment,

Weather Data Shows Year Warmest On Record In Most States

ONLY TWO BAD DROUGHT SPOTS ARE REPORTED

Severe Storms and Floods Generally Lacking Throughout U. S.

Washington (P)—The fellow who kept repeating through most of 1931, "Gosh, it's hot," really had something to talk about.

Officials records of the weather bureau show the year now closing as the warmest on record for nearly every state.

While generally there was an excess of high temperatures, there also was a noticeable lack of disturbing and costly weather phenomena, such as the widespread droughts of 1930, severe tropical storms and tornadoes and devastating floods.

Surrounded by his charts and figures, J. B. Kincaid, meteorologist, termed the excessive warmth the outstanding feature of 1931.

He traced it to a persisting arrangement of low pressure areas in the north and high pressure areas in the south which let in warm winds from southern waters.

The last comparable year was 1921. Kincaid said today he believed 1931 to be the culmination of 12 years of warm weather dating back to the unusually cold winter of 1917-1918.

Two bad drought spots, however, spotted the year's weather map. The first occurred in the spring in the northwestern states of Montana, North and South Dakota. Thousands of farmers required assistance when their feed crops were destroyed.

About the time fall rains relieved this drought, another became acute in the southeast, centering in Georgia and South Carolina. They could not, however, compare with the great dry period last year.

Five tropical storms sprang up in the Caribbean last summer, but none touched the United States. Floods were local in character with the exception of the one now periling lives in Mississippi.

Last Winter Mild
The winter of 1931, generally speaking, was open and mild with one of the lightest falls of snow ever recorded. In some states new low temperature marks were registered, but by and large, blizzards and winter storms were the exception.

The excess of high temperatures over normal for the year was built up in the months of January and February, June and July, September, October and November.

The northern half of the country was comparatively warmer than the southern half, with the greatest excess centering in the northern great plains states—North and South Dakota and Minnesota.

Huron, South Dakota, was relatively the hottest place in the country, taking the year as a whole. The accumulated excess of temperature up to Dec. 1 was 2,181 degrees, or an average of 65 degrees above normal every day.

The heat of the past summer was blamed for scores of deaths. The eastern half of the country has experienced the warmest December on record. Thus far, there is virtually no snow and ice outside of the high mountain regions.

STORMS IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco (P)—With further rains and snows forecast for today, California literally "dug out," so far as roads and railway lines were concerned, from the havoc caused by storms of the past few days.

Southern Pacific train movements over the Sierra Nevada, hampered by snowslides in two different places, were reported under way. Four deaths, three in traffic, were attributed to the storms. Some highways were clogged by landslides as a result of the weekend's heavy downpour.

Gardner Hale, noted New York painter, was killed when his automobile plunged from a mountain road near Santa Maria.

Mrs. Grace Wright, 60, of Los Angeles, drowned in a creek near Redlands after falling from a bus that stalled in the flood waters.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ylaja were killed by the overturning of their motor car in San Pedro, Calif.

In Long Beach, more than 500 families were driven from their homes by rising waters. Water stood three to four feet deep in some houses.

NINE CIRCUIT COURT CASES ON CALENDAR

Nine cases are listed for hearing at a special session of the September term of circuit court which has been set by Judge Edgar V. Werner for Jan. 7, according to notices being sent out by Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of courts. Cases listed on the calendar are: Lillian Smith versus E. C. Koester, Henry Gilliam versus Elsie Gilliam, Store Dealers Supply company versus F. H. Zair, et al; state of Wisconsin versus Riverside Paper company; Charles Pullman versus John Morgan; George Riehl, et al, versus John Fassbender, et al; Joseph Haffeman versus Joseph E. Garvey; City of Appleton versus E. H. Sager; Irma Sigl versus Ben Sigl.

DON'T NEED LICENSE TO SPEAR STURGEON

No license will be required to spear sturgeon in Lake Winnebago this winter, according to Louis Jeske, conservation warden here. The only requirement will be that spearfishermen must have sturgeon tags, which can be secured directly from the conservation commission at Madison. The tags are sold by the commission for 5 cents each. These must be attached to the fish removed from the lake. The season for sturgeon will open Jan. 5 and continue until March 31.

WORD "GERMANE" IS SIGNIFICANT IN LEGISLATURE

Dozen or More Bills Returned to Author Because They Didn't Have It

Madison (P)—One word in the legislative vocabulary, oft spoken around the Senate and Assembly chambers during the special session is that little word "germane."

It signifies an especially qualification that all special session bills must have, and, incidentally, it has saved the legislature considerable work. A dozen or more bills went back to their authors without action because they didn't have it.

When Governor La Follette issued his call for the lawmakers to assemble, he outlined the field in which they could act. And the speakers of the two houses, with the help of a few members, have built a fence around the field to see that there is no legal encroachment.

So, to be germane, means to be on the right side of the fence. One of the subjects in the field in which the legislators may act—perhaps the most important subject—is unemployment relief. To review the journals of the two houses is to discover that apparently there has been some fence climbing on the unemployment question.

Authors of the bills that are not "germane" considered they were within their rights, but the house rulers have held otherwise.

"And what's the use," says Lieut. Gov. Henry Huber, "to pass a bill that isn't germane for the courts will rule that the governor did not intend such a law to be passed and then it will be invalid." In this, Speaker Charles Perry concurred.

As a result, cigar taxes, ice fishing, cutting down the old age pension limit, extending the time for getting automobile licenses and a few other things failed of the essential qualification. All were intended in the end to relieve unemployment, but not within the letter of the governor's call.

One of the most important bills ruled out was that introduced by Sen. O. S. Loomis, Mauston, to re-amp poor relief laws. The bill would have permitted cities above 10,000 to set themselves up as a public welfare district, separate from the county, to assume the responsibility for their needy. It also provided for employment of commissionaires to supervise administration of poor relief funds.

Lieut. Gov. Huber could find no language in the governor's call to justify introduction of the bill.

Another "germane-less" bill of considerable importance was the Frank cigarette tax measure. The interim committee on unemployment recommended such a tax for relief purposes, but Governor La Follette did not advocate it. Speaker Perry held it was not applicable to the session.

FINE DANCE SHE DIDN'T HAVE LICENSE

Lillian Sommers, Appleton, proprietor of a roadhouse on Highway 125 in Winnebago-co, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Silas Spengler in municipal court at Oshkosh yesterday when she pleaded guilty of operating a soft drink parlor without a license. The Appleton woman was arrested by E. C. Abell, motorcycle officer, who signed the complaint. The officer said many complaints had been received about the roadhouse. This arrest is a follow-up of a campaign instituted recently to curb unlicensed soft drink vendors. Previously several operators in the town of Menasha, just outside of Appleton, were arrested and fined.

ASSAILS RUSSIA FOR ATTITUDE TO CATHOLICS

Historical Group Hears Bitter Attack on Persecution by Soviets

Minneapolis (P)—Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh vice president of Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., today attacked the government of Soviet Russia for its treatment of the Roman Catholic church, before the American Catholic Historical association.

He asserted that since the revolution of 1917, it has confiscated church property and imprisoned bishops, priests and other church workers "in defiance of every law except its own, which is based on the theory that religion is opium to the people."

Within the area now under Soviet power, the Roman Catholic church in 1917 had 614 churches in operation, 581 chapels, 810 priests, 7 seminaries and 8 bishops. Dr. Walsh said, "Now, he asserted, there are 182 churches, no chapels, no seminaries, 110 priests at liberty and 200 in prison, with 2 bishops at liberty and 3 in prison.

"Two hundred priests languish in prison—the remainder of those formerly in service have perished from privation and starvation or have been exiled and executed," Dr. Walsh said, explaining that he has been an eye-witness at trials in Russia involving Catholic clergy.

"The soviet government, by its deliberate choice," Dr. Walsh continued, "has transferred its belligerency to every hearth and home, and enlarged a domestic policy into an international menace which strikes at the very foundation of the Christian civilization."

Charges Slavery

"Sombre actualities are sometimes obscured by tourists returning from Moscow and reporting they visited churches and for religious services being conducted as usual. Did the visitor have an opportunity to inspect Sovetskaya island, or the cells of the prison camps where so many are confined under conditions of actual slavery?"

"What guarantee is given them the ministers or religion whom the tourists saw at liberty now? They are disappearing daily and the lay members of all churches who remain loyal to their faith do so at peril of their lives, liberties and happiness. Church laws which have been set up are the essence of persecution."

"Serenely confident of the outcome of this conflict between light and darkness, the church continues in prayer and hope and suffering," Dr. Walsh said. "She has nineteen centuries behind her and all the future before her."

"The Roman Catholic church will not recoil, retreat nor compromise before the soviet governments continued invasion of the most sacred human heritage, before its calculated degradation of the soul for the defilement of the flesh and in the face of its conspiracy to extend that attack to the entire world. She must perish first, if that were possible."

DELAY EXECUTION OF CONDEMNED MURDERER

Freeport, Ill. (P)—The execution of Russell McWilliams, 17-year-old Rockford, Ill., youth who pleaded guilty of slaying a street car motorist, was ordered delayed today until the state supreme court can review his case.

Supreme Court Justice Oscar E. Heard of Freeport, allowed a writ of error requested by the boy's attorneys and ordered that the writ be made a supersedeas.

McWilliams pleaded guilty to shooting a motorist during a hold-up at Rockford Aug. 29. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair Dec. 11, but on Dec. 7, Governor Emmerson granted a stay of 30 days. Since the new date of execution would arrive before the supreme court session, which begins Feb. 2, the defense presented the petition which resulted in today's action.

OFFICERS RECOVER STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

A Ford roadster, owned by Ray Arnold, 525 N. Bateman-st, was recovered by police last night at the corner of Alton and Law-sts, several hours after it was reported stolen from a parking place on the Midway. The car was reported stolen at 7:30 and was recovered at 10:45. Officers Alfred Goshua and Earl Thomas recovered the machine.

PROTEST PAYMENT OF CITY WORKMEN IN SCRIP

Muskegon, Mich. (P)—The city commission's move to pay all 2,000 of the city workers in scrip was reversed last night when several hundred crowded into the commission chambers in protest. The commission decided to continue paying 900 of the 2,000 workers in cash.

HOMES PROVIDED AT PORTAGE FOR TWINS FOUND AT CITY DUMP

Portage (P)—Adolph and Carl Refvem, the twins who lived on the city dump until they were picked up as suspicious characters, have been offered homes. Portage made almost a civic enterprise of caring for the men when their boards shaved. They were proved to be harmless unemployed former service men eager to get back to their native Norway. As a result of publicity attending their discovery the men were identified by O. C. and Ralph Swensen, Stoughton farmers, as cousins. The farmers offered to provide homes for the twins. The Refvems learned from their cousins that their father has become a wealthy merchant in Norway.

SPIRIT OF YOUTH HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR STOCK SLUMP

New York Bankers Say Warnings Were Brushed Aside by Speculators

New York (P)—The impetuous spirit of youth was responsible for the 1929 stock market collapse, several leading New York bankers said today in answering a senate committee's charge that large Wall-st banks must bear the blame.

In the frenzied speculative orgy of 1928 and 1929, they recalled, the cautious warnings of some of America's elder economists and business men were brushed aside. This, they said, was just as true in the commercial and professional fields, as it was in banking and brokerage circles. The adage that "youth will be served" was the watchword of the age, it was said, and conservative advice was scorned.

Last week's report of a subcommittee of the United States senate, charging that the Wall-st banks had abetted the stock market crash by permitting an overgrowth of loans by banks to brokers "for the account of others." The report also criticized the formation by banks of security affiliates.

Can't Place Blame
Several leading bankers said it was futile to attempt to pin the blame for the crash on any individual or group. It was primarily due to the spirit of the day, they said, which was one of extreme enthusiasm for speculation. They recalled that Paul M. Warburg and the late George F. Baker both strongly warned against speculative excesses.

In further discussion of the report, bankers stated that efforts had been made to apply the brakes to the rapidly moving vehicle of national speculation. The federal reserve later raised the minimum amount that it would accommodate to $100,000 and, this year, actually abolished the practice of placing such loans.

A few bankers agreed that the creation by banks of security affiliates was a contributory cause. Several, however, insisted that this was a sound practice and should not be disturbed.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

A one-act comedy, "Putting Up a Prosperous Front," by students of the Outagamie Rural Normal school at Kaukauna, was the feature of a Christmas program presented last Tuesday evening at the Brookside rural school, town of Center. Those taking part in the play were: Jere Ottman, Rod Knuth, Marcelle Heinz, Lorrain Hoolihan, Evan Wieseler and Lucille Landreman. Numbers presented by the school children included: songs, recitations, dialogues and dances. Santa Claus visited the school and distributed gifts. About 125 people attended the program. Miss Eleanor Torrey is teacher of the school.

BELIEF IN MAGIC STILL RULES LIVES OF MANY AMERICANS

Women More Inclined Than Men to Believe in It, Professor Says

New Orleans (P)—Ancient "magical" beliefs, brought up to date, that still rule every day lives of many educated Americans were described today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Women are slightly more inclined to believe in "magic" than men, said Prof. A. O. Bowden of New Mexico State Teachers college, because they are less accustomed to meeting the hard facts of reality. He took a census of "magical" beliefs that prevail among citizens in most leading occupations and compared them with beliefs of school teachers.

The belief that beautiful pictures, fine music and beautiful home surroundings somehow make people moral and virtuous is held by 86 out of every 100 average citizens, Professor Bowden found. Seventy-five of every 100 school teachers believed it.

He found 65 out of every 100 citizens believed fish is a better brain food than bacon, but only 32 out of 100 teachers believed it.

In politics, the professor discovered, 92 people of every 100 believe the great majority of the American people are sure to vote on the right side of any public question because of their innate ability to tell right from wrong.

Belief that prayers have some influence in bringing rain, other changes in the weather or restoration of health to ill persons was held by 75 of every 100 people, he found, while 78 per cent of the school teachers believed it.

Sixty-five per cent of the average citizens believe certain men and women are naturally "made for each other" in marriage, the study revealed, but only 58 per cent of the teachers shared this belief.

Going to school does little to eradicate such "magical" beliefs from the minds of most people, Professor Bowden said. Teachers that answered his questionnaire held only 3 per cent less as many "magical" beliefs as the average citizen he tested. The more reading a person does after leaving school, he found, the less likely is it that he will subscribe to "magical beliefs."

Disease Germs, Like Dogs, Are Afflicted With Fleas

Baltimore (P)—Disease germs, like dogs, have tiny fleas whose bites sometimes turn the bacteria into raging destroyers and sometimes drug them into harmlessness. Discovery of certain profound effects of these bacterial fleas was reported to the Society of American Bacteriologists today by Dr. F. D'Herelle of the school of medicine of Yale university.

The bacterial pests do not merely drive disease germs berserk, but somehow alter heredity, so that a different species of bacteria develops. The new species may be either more dangerous or less so than were its parents.

D'Herelle's discovery suggests the possibility of controlling bacteria by breeding, provided it can be ascertained what kind of flea bites will rob disease germs of their virulence. The proper scientific name of the fleas is "phage," which means eaters. D'Herelle discovered the existence of phages in 1918. They are invisible to the most powerful microscope. D'Herelle believes they are living things. Some scientists doubt this and hold that they are some sort of chemical having a powerful affinity for bacteria. Frequently the phages of fleas which prey on one type of bacteria are harmless to other types.

D'Herelle's phage fleas already have been used with good results in checking isolated cholera outbreaks in India. The cholera phage does something to render the plague less deadly. D'Herelle told the bacteriologists today that disease bacteria do not change their species or their virulence unless a "phage" becomes associated with them. He described raising bacteria in "pure form," that is without any phage. He grew them on 500 different kinds of bacteria food, or media. Not the slightest change occurred in these bacteria in a single case.

Then the phage was given to them and D'Herelle says: "From the moment of the contamination, mutations occur in every direction and each of the characters varies by itself as a separate entity with a result that the number of possible mutations, all from a single primitive bacterium, is indefinite."

The bacterial transformations are true mutations, similar to those which have been described by botanists as occurring in plants under action of parasitism.

The rate of growth of a single bacterium has been measured by Dr. Stanhope Bayne-Jones and Dr. Edward F. Adolph of the University of Rochester School of Medicine. A single germ is placed on the point of a cone of germ food, and its motion picture taken at the rate of 20 to 30 views per minute for several hours. Some bacteria after growing to full size, later actually begin to grow smaller, although they do not go clear back to babyhood size again.

EFFICIENT U. S. DRY AGENT CALLED IDEAL FOR AMERICAN BOYS

Washington (P)—Over the signature of Walton Hood Grant, editor, the prohibition bureau's official weekly bulletin to the enforcement personnel says: "If I were a boy seeking an unselfish American official who works courageously on in absolute duty, resisting all sinister influences and setting an example for all manly boys to follow, I believe my choice would fall upon an efficient prohibition agent. He typifies an ideal."

SET DATES FOR SECOND COURSE IN LANDSCAPING

Professor F. A. Aust to Instruct Group from Jan. 12 to Feb. 23

Appleton vocational school has taken final steps to bring Prof. F. A. Aust, eminent landscape artist of the University of Wisconsin, to Appleton this winter for a popular lecture course on landscape design. It was announced this morning. The course will be open to any person interested in the beautification of the city through improvement of home grounds.

Professor Aust has been scheduled for a series of six lectures at the vocational school, beginning Jan. 12 and continuing every Tuesday evening until Feb. 23.

He will offer as the central theme at each meeting the following subjects: Gardening As Influenced by Design in Nature, Making the Design Plan, Making the Planting Plan, Perennials for Home Grounds, and Practical Problems in Carrying Out the Planting Plan.

The course is especially for the small home owner. It is said to be well adapted to help the home owner deal intelligently, artistically and economically with his landscaping problems. Since the basic principles of the various arts are the same, the course is intended to form an excellent background for study of any of the other arts. Stress is to be laid on these principles so that students may appreciate better what is good design and may also create good design.

Encourages Utility Group instruction of this kind is offered as a means of encouraging practical utility in home landscaping and of instilling an artistic appreciation of the landscaping art and of the out-of-doors. Along with a consideration of the fundamental principles, the course gives a survey of the history and development of the art, and outlines the correlation of this to other arts. Consideration also is given to the correlation of landscape design to our urban and rural life. The specific purpose, however, is to enable individuals to apply the principles to their own problems.

As specific features of these classes, many stereoscopic pictures are shown. Sketch plans, designs, and planting plans of home grounds are other means used to give each lesson a definite application to the individual problem.

These lectures are scheduled in cooperation with the university extension division and the department of horticulture of the university. Professor Aust began this type of instruction a year ago, and gave his lecture series during the last school year in a half dozen leading Wisconsin cities to the high satisfaction of hundreds of home owners who registered.

Depression Brings Work To Seamstresses In City

Needles and scissors of Appleton seamstresses have been playing a steady way through old clothes for several weeks, according to dress makers in the city. The sudden economy on clothes has brought them weeks of busy work making "old things into new."

More women are having old clothes remodeled than ever before, they declare, although nearly as many new dresses are being made, too.

The work in one dressmaking place indicates that being a seamstress at these times is not always an easy job. Women bring in old clothing, fashioned according to a certain style. With the new trend, the frock needs a longer skirt, a new sleeve, or a different neckline to make last year's dress this year's creation.

One of the popular methods of making an old dress over is to fashion a new cowl neckline on the top of the dress, thus supplying a contrasting bodice which allows the skirt to drop several inches. New sleeves and trimmings play an important place in the made-over frock.

3 RURAL SCHOOLS REPORT ATTENDANCE

Three rural schools have reported to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, the names of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy during December. Following are the students with the perfect attendance records:

Brookside school, town of Center, Miss Eleanor Torrey, teacher, Agnes Kuba, Lucille Jenkel, Marian Wunderlich, Elmer Coon, Edward Jenkel, Lillian Kuba, Elmer Ashman, James Jenkel, Albert Ashman, Margaret Hoffman, Rosella Lautenschlaeger, Herbert Kahler, Wenzel Kuba, Ethel Hoffman, Walter Ashman, Bernice Kahler, Evelyn Lautenschlaeger, and Mary Ann Kitzinger.

Pleasant Valley school, town of Cicero, Miss Aileen Lemke, teacher, Donald Busse, Arline Sylvester, Eleanor Wussow, Carl Wussow, Louise Mueller, Willard Sylvester, James Court, Viola Lowenhagen, Lorena Wadel, William Wadel, Lester Abel, and LeRoy Abel.

Elmwood school, town of Bovina, Miss Lillian Colson, teacher, Gordon Goodwin, Jacob Weber, Marion Weber, Anton Weber, Kenneth Wingate, Leigh Spohr, Keither Spohr, Bryce Spohr, Judith Spohr, Clifford Mehlholtz, Arlene Mehlholtz, Helen Mehlholtz and Edwin Spohr.

APPLETON TO ATTEND ANNUAL ROAD SCHOOL

Frank R. Appleton, highway commissioner, and several members of the Outagamie-co highway committee will attend the annual state road school at Madison on Jan. 25, 26, 27 and 28. The annual meeting of the Wisconsin County Highway Commissioners' association is to be held in conjunction with the sessions of the road school.

SUNSHINE PLANT

Paris—Artificial sunshine has been installed in a newspaper plant here. It is the work of Jacques Arthurs, and consists of magnifying rays of sunshine, by means of lenses and mirrors, and distributing these rays to all parts of the building. The light comes in from a skylight and is reflected from a large mirror on the ground floor to smaller mirrors on each of the upper five stories.

RETAIL CONFERENCE PLANS ANNOUNCED BY EXTENSION DIVISION

Two University of Wisconsin Leaders Coming Here Jan. 12 and 13

The first of a new series of retail conferences to be offered in Wisconsin by the University of Wisconsin Extension division will be held in Appleton on Jan. 12 and 13 under auspices of Appleton vocational school and the division. The program for this city has been designed for special application to small and medium sized stores.

Four meetings are being arranged. Leaders will be Dean Richard E.

Ellingswood and Dr. H. R. Doering, business specialists who conducted the first series last year.

Two of the four most pressing problems facing retailers in 1932—better advertising and credits, and collections will be discussed. Emphasis will be given to building up more profitable business through making the advertising appeal more effective, reducing losses from bad debts, and collecting past-due accounts.

According to local leaders in this movement, the addresses by extension representatives will be short, and "straight from the shoulder." They will be illustrated with charts, several hundred lantern slides showing specific, workable collection methods, and an extensive series of exhibits.

Individual Interviews Between sessions the university leaders will give individual interviews in the stores, pointing out to managers and others how successful methods used in similar stores elsewhere may be applied with profits to their own business. The point of view of the leaders is that the store manager is looking for new, but tested ideas that will help him to increase his profits.

These retail conference services are rendered on a non-profit basis with the object of offering a maximum of benefit at a minimum of expense to the local community.

Information on the conference is being given by Herb Helg, vocational school director; A. J. Genlesse, chairman of the chamber of commerce retail division, and Marshall C. Graff, district representative of the extension division.

MILL OWNERS INSURES

ONE MINUTE MANUFACTURING CO., NEWTON

MILLIONS of dollars worth of One Minute washing machines have come out of this plant. An army of workers—a nation-wide family of One Minute dealers—are dependent upon its steady production for wages, salaries and profits. Should fire paralyze its operation, losses far greater than actual property damage would occur. For this reason, the Mill Owners fire prevention engineers are constantly at work—inspecting, checking and eliminating fire hazards in connection with this and other select properties insured by the Mill Owners. As a result, Mill Owners fire losses are kept down and the many uninsurable losses are minimized for its policyholders. The attendant saving thus effected plus the economies secured through its capable, conservative mutual management affords a return of 25 and 30 dollars out of every 100 dollars spent for Mill Owners two-fold protection. If you are interested in the highest margin of safety at substantially lower cost, investigate Mill Owners service now. See our local agent or write for full information.

Third Party Movement Considered By Independent Republicans

GROUP SEEKING CANDIDATE TO OPPOSE HOOVER

Norris Declines to Enter Nomination Race Against President

Washington—(AP)—Republican Independents are seriously considering a third party movement in 1932 to oppose Hoover's re-nomination.

The group comprises the senate independents. It is opposed to re-nomination of President Hoover. Conferences have been going on among the members looking to a contest against Hoover's re-nomination but no single candidate has been agreed upon.

The veteran Senator Norris of Nebraska, has been asked to make a contest against Hoover's re-nomination, but he has declined to enter the nomination race.

Norris, however, is definitely understood to be ready to support any of four candidates under consideration.

If a third party were organized, he is looked upon together with Senator Borah of Idaho, as a likely head of the ticket.

Possible Candidates Under consideration for an anti-Hoover race in the Republican primaries are Senator Borah, Johnson, of California, and Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

None of the Republican Independents, including representatives from the northwestern states, is willing to talk publicly of the plans of the group.

It is known, however, that the members have been meeting and sipping up the situation. Privately, they intimate very broadly that none of the potential Democratic presidential candidates with the possible exception of Governor Roosevelt of New York, is acceptable.

Also, there is a conviction that President Hoover has the power to renounce himself.

Consequently the talk of a third party was frowned upon in public statements a year ago by both Norris and Borah.

Senator Borah has always stood by the Republican party. He did so in the split of 1912 when Theodore Roosevelt headed the "Bull Moose" ticket.

However, Borah has been in frequent conflict with the Hoover policies, principally the tariff and farm relief. His name is linked in the talk of a third party movement.

DOUBT STORY TOLD IN KIDNAPING CASE

Detectives Believe Mrs. DePew Knows Whereabouts of Her Husband

Blomberg, Pa.—(AP)—The failure of Kansas City detectives to locate the late night with Mrs. DePew gave rise today to reports they doubted her story that she does not know the whereabouts of her husband, Martin DePew, sought as a leader in the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, millionaire manufacturer.

Mrs. DePew has told officers her husband deserted her in Buffalo, N. Y., where she learned for the first time that he was charged with being one of the kidnapers.

Robert Cole, Kansas City detective, last night said he believed DePew was in Pennsylvania and he and his companions planned to continue their search in this section.

Mrs. DePew may be started back to Kansas City tonight, it was said.

The officers were reported to doubt part of Mrs. DePew's story that she hitch-hiked here from Buffalo after her husband left with the declaration that he was going to Canada.

Friends of Mrs. DePew said today that her brother had been living in Kansas City for several years. The Kansas City detectives were said to be checking on the possibility that Mrs. DePew's husband brought her here, but the officers refused to discuss that angle or the reports that they were not entirely convinced with her "hitch-hiking" story.

RULING IS ISSUED ON DEPOSITS OF FUNDS

Madison—(AP)—Deputy Attorney General Fred Wylie is ruling relative to the new state insurance law for public deposits in banks today said "resignation by county boards in November of county depositories under the old law and acceptable by banks under the new law, is a substantial and sufficient compliance with the new law." The statement was made in an opinion sought by Fulton Colpitt, Adams county district attorney.

OSHKOSH MAN FINED FOR DRIVING TOO FAST

127TH INF. OFFICERS HOLD CONFERENCE AT OSHKOSH IN JANUARY

Regular Army Instructors in Regiment Will Discuss Training

All officers of Wisconsin National Guard units which comprise the 127th Infantry, will gather for a mid-winter conference at Oshkosh Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 16 and 17.

The conference will be held at the Oshkosh Hotel. It is the first of a series of conferences held by the regiment.

Major Fred W. Hoffman, Appleton, commands the first battalion of the regiment.

The conference will open at 11 o'clock in the morning with assembly and announcements by Col. Himes and his staff. At noon a luncheon will be served by Oshkosh guard companies at the Oshkosh Armory.

At 1:30 in the afternoon the first conference session will be held, with Major W. P. Scooby of the regular army talking on "Training Schedules and Arrangement of Subjects for Instruction."

At 2 o'clock Major Scooby will discuss "Officers' Army Extension Courses" and "Non-commissioned Officers' Correspondence Courses."

Capt. A. P. Legorio, Appleton, regular army instructor will talk at 2:30 on "Instructional Methods and Training Tests" and at 3:30, Lieut. Col. Byron Beveridge, formerly of Appleton will discuss "Helpful Hints from an Inspecting Officer."

At 4:30 o'clock sectional conferences are scheduled with regimental staff, howitzer company and service company officers under direction of Col. Himes; regimental and battalion headquarters under direction of Major Scooby; medical officers under direction of Major Randall, Milwaukee; and line companies under their respective majors.

A banquet is scheduled at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, Jan. 16. At 10 o'clock Sunday morning the conference meetings will be resumed with Major Scooby talking on "The 1932 Federal Inspection."

Announcements and instructions by regimental commander and staff officers will follow and the meeting will adjourn at 11 o'clock.

MOTHER WITH ONE CHILD MAY GET AID

Deputy Attorney General Gives Opinion Under Mothers Pension Law

Madison—(AP)—In an opinion given R. A. Forsythe, district attorney of St. Croix co. Fred M. Wylie, deputy attorney general, today said any state mothers' pension law to mean that a mother with one child may not receive state aid is usurping legislative functions.

"The passage of the mothers' pension law followed the report to the legislature by the board of control in which the public policy of keeping the mother with the child instead of away at work was emphasized," Wylie said.

"The law contains the provision that 'the judge may, as the best interest of such child requires, grant aid, and 'the aid granted shall be sufficient to enable the mother to care properly for the children,'" Wylie said.

"Confers no arbitrary power upon the judge. It confers a discretion which he was duty bound not to abuse."

APPLETON MAN FINED FOR JUMPING ARTERIAL

Herbert Wickesberg, Appleton, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty of jumping an arterial at the corner of Wisconsin-ave and Richmond-st.

He was arrested by Charles Steidl, county motorcycle officer. The officer told the court that Wickesberg had speed through the intersection. If Wickesberg does not pay the fine within a week the judge has ordered the office to file a charge of reckless driving against him and his driver's license will then be suspended.

No Law, Order In China, Returned Missionary Says

China, which has been receiving her share of publicity lately because of her clash with Japan, is seen from a new angle through the eyes of the Rev. Henri Van Vree, missionary of the preaching order of the Society of the Divine Word, and secretary to the Bishop of Yang Chu Foo, China, who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Schoonenberg, 711 Owaissa-st. Father Van Vree is a cousin of Mr. Schoonenberg.

Father Van Vree has been on his missionary labors in inland China for the past 8 years and the poor Chinese are a sorry lot in the interior provinces, one gathers from the missionary's story. There is no law and order and a large portion of the people live by brigandage and banditry. Indeed banditry is a profession, and a more or less successful gangster boasts of the fact that he comes from a long line of notorious brigands; that his father, his brothers and his grandfathers before him lived by the loot they eked from the long-suffering and patient Chinese.

Hid In Cellar

The missionary himself has not escaped the bandits. For six days and nights he was hid in a cellar, or really a cave, while the gangsters sacked the city above his little party and literally destroyed his mission buildings. He had been warned by the bandits. In fact they were folks that he knew. They just ran out of money as even Chinese bandits will, they start sending threats to whomsoever they believe might have some money which they could use.

Just before Father Van Vree left for his first visit to the United States, not more than a fortnight ago, a Protestant minister and his wife in the same province experienced a harrowing affair with the bandits. The two-year old daughter of the minister was kidnapped and held in ransom for a fabulous sum.

The bandits amputated two of the baby's fingers and sent them back to the parents as evidence that they were not fooling and wanted the huge sum in return for the child. And all there is to do is to deal with the bandits and strike your own deal, the missionary relates.

3 Million Christians

Of the 400,000,000 Chinese the father says about two and one half millions are Catholics and about one million Christians of other creeds. Some of the families in his present diocese of vicariate as it is called in the mission fields have been practical Catholics for 300 years. The Christmas services here made him homesome, he said, for he knew that the same cribs and Masses were being attended by his people to whom he has become very attached.

About Manchuria and the present crisis which has had world attention Father Van Vree says that the Chinese would just as soon fight with Japan about the occupation of Manchuria but will not because they cannot. It would be unjustified suicide he believes. China has nothing to represent an adequate military establishment. Japan is thoroughly modern and prepared. Japan needs Manchuria. Japan is overpopulated. Manchuria has failed to govern herself effectively or independently.

China does business with Manchuria but otherwise means little or nothing to Manchuria in the way of government or improvements and certainly in protection. Manchuria is very valuable in land. It has vast ranches or farms and some wealthy people. But it has very little population when compared to China or Japan. The Japanese wish to colonize it. Father Van Vree thinks that is for the best. He believes Manchuria, Japan and China all have more to be gained by this "peaceful operation" saving Manchuria from China and throwing it open to crafty provident Japs. The whole world should better by the experiment he also believes. And he is certain there will be no war because there must be two armies in any kind of a war and he declares China a pitiful opponent for the Japs.

In China 8 Years

Father Van Vree, though a Netherlander by birth and education and a resident of China for these eight years, speaks English fluently and has many an interesting tale of things as they are in China's dark interior. He confirms the legend of the Chinese consulting the doctor because he is well rather than because he is ill.

Only one desire is more imperative than the desire for a long life and that is the desire for a male child. If a man marries a wife and the first two children are girls he doesn't care for his wife but he adds another and he may keep adding wives to his collection in purest Chinese ethics and tradition until a male child arrives in the household. One general, whom the missionary knows maintains 30 wives and has celebrated the arrival of not less than 80 children. The first son inherits all of the fathers possessions and has peculiar legal and social rights.

Only Boys Count

Only the boys count in China, the father says. A man how large his family is and he may say "two." Father Van Vree says. That means he has two sons. The four other children which are daughters don't count. The boys live with their fathers. The girls remain with their mothers. Even in his mission school Father Van Vree can talk to the veiled girl children only at a distance. They are not the equals of the men for one thing and they are vegetative virgins for another thing. When they reach the age of 12 or 13, they can be purchased from the father for a dollar or two. Or in better families matches are made by the parents.

Father Van Vree likes the Chinese. They're kind, big-hearted and generous even in their miserable poverty, he says. Give a Chinaman enough to eat and he's a good Chinaman with much in him to admire, the pastor says. They're freakishly temperamental however. He also says. The people in the interior are notoriously poor. A very few cents a day feeds them. Prices are very low. Father Van Vree bought a very attractive new outfit to wear on his first trip to America. His splendid new cheviot overcoat was tailor-made for him for $13 and the suit he wore which looked like a show of prosperity to many pastors he will meet over here, cost him seven dollars. He thinks the fabrics were American, woven, too.

The Chinese missionary visited last week with cousins in Green Bay.

Wisconsin Weather

Rain or snow tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

General Weather

A vast low pressure area overlies the western half of the country, being centered this morning over Colorado, with a barometer reading of 29.23 inches at Denver. Rain is beginning to fall over Nebraska and Iowa in connection with this disturbance but so far the fall has only been light. More rain fell again over the western coast during the past 24 hours, and snow is falling over sections of the Canadian northwest. Temperatures are still abnormally high, being above freezing throughout the country with the exception of the New England states and northern sections of the Rocky Mountain and plains states. Rain or snow is expected in this section tonight and Wednesday, with continued mild.

NATIONAL LEGION HEAD WILL SPEAK AT STATE MEETING

Appleton Veterans Planning to Attend Mid-winter Conference

Henry L. Stevens, national commander of the American Legion, and Gov. Philip F. LaFollette, will speak Monday, Jan. 11, at the eleventh annual mid-winter conference dinner of the American Legion of Wisconsin at Hotel Lorraine, Madison. The conference will be held from Jan. 9 to 12.

Other speakers at the dinner will be Mayor A. L. Schmiedeman, Madison, Dr. C. A. Dawson, state commander of the Legion, and Capt. Irving O'Leary, Madison.

A large delegation of Appleton veterans plan to attend the conference. One Johnston post again being entered in competition for the Graft trophy which goes to the largest post on the opening day of the conference. Last year Appleton won the trophy for the first time.

The legion auxiliary of the state will meet at the same time. Mrs. D. F. Nauth, Kiel, state president, is in charge of the program. Meetings of the Forty and Eight, fun organization of the legion, will also be held.

Subjects to be discussed at the conference include community service, incorporation of legion posts, conservation, Americanism, athletics, marksmanship, employment, aviation, national defense, Boy Scout work and C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. organization.

Leaders of discussions will be Aubrey Williams, Madison, chairman of the legion department of community service; A. L. Godfrey Elkhorn, department judge advocate; Roy Parrand, Delafield, department conservation chairman; Paul L. Kaiser, Junaua, Americanism chairman; Dr. S. M. Colman, Wausau, athletics chairman; John H. Lasher, Milwaukee, employment chairman; Edward J. Nelson, Manitowoc, aviation chairman; George Goetz, Milwaukee, Boy Scout chairman.

VAN DYCK PURCHASES NOFFKE FUEL BUSINESS

William Van Dyck, yesterday acquired the yards and coal business of the H. A. Noffke company, 1905 W. Wisconsin-ave. Van Dyck also has located his office in the Brandt-bldg, 329 W. College-ave. He will conduct his business and operate storage bins on the recently acquired property. He plans to improve the building at 1905 W. Wisconsin-ave and use part of it as living quarters. He also plans to erect new storage bins and generally improve the property. Van Dyck came to Appleton Nov. 1, opening an office here and trucking coal to the city from Green Bay. With the new yards he now will sell to truckers.

LIONS HEAR ABOUT SCOUT WORK IN CITY

M. G. Clark, valley council scout executive, outlined to Appleton Lions work the scouts have done in the past year in Appleton and the valley. The report was similar to that Mr. Clark gave at the annual meeting of the council. Mr. Clark pointed out it was about five years ago that the Lions took an interest in scout work and planned reorganization of the Council, and helped raise money to get the reorganized project started.

FIND NO TRACE OF HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER

No trace has been found by police of the vampire driver whose car struck Paul Notaras, 35, 328 E. North-st. last Friday evening at the corner of College-ave and Walnut-st. Notaras suffered the loss of his left ear and injuries to his neck. After striking the man the driver fled west on College-ave in the old model Ford sedan which he was driving. Notaras was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital. Police Chief George T. Prim said the police are still working on the case.

NEW SYSTEM OF BOOKS ADVISED FOR POOR OFFICE

Partial Audit of Lyons' Records Presented to Poor Committee

A partial audit of the office of the former poor commissioner, W. L. Lyons, was presented to the poor committee Monday evening by Willard J. Schenck, auditor, with the explanation that a complete accounting was impossible because of the confused and disordered state of the office.

Lyons was ousted from office several weeks ago on charges of neglect of duty and inefficiency.

The auditor's report recommended a bookkeeping system for the poor department and gave an account of the expenditures, as indicated by vouchers in the city clerk's office, up to the time of Lyons' removal, Dec. 21.

A total of $33,641 was expended, $25,626 in outside aid, $6,497 for the upkeep of the City Hall and $1,517 for the poor commissioner's office. Credits for this period totaled $7,525. The largest item for the year was rent and board, which amounted to $9,531. Food and provisions cost $7,917, and drugs, hospital and medical care $5,903. Fuel cost $3,383; salaries and help, $1,513; funerals and sundry items $1,639; gas and lights, $657; and clothing, $109.

Suggests System

Schenck suggested a system for bookkeeping which included advice on a cash received record, distribution of vouchers, an inventory record of the storeroom, the handling of requisitions, checking of invoices, outside charges, Appleton charges in other localities, purchase discounts, and reports to the poor committee.

In concluding his report, Schenck stated: "This system is simple, and in my opinion, represents the minimum requirements for the great amount of detail the poor committee's office must handle."

The poor committee and poor commissioner are engaged in expending considerable funds in the performance of an intricate and difficult task and they cannot properly perform their duties unless accurate information is promptly available.

The poor commissioner should be as free as possible from office routine and devote his time to the hearing of appeals, the receipt and the investigation and study of cases."

RAIN, SNOW ON MENU FOR NEXT 24 HOURS

Rain or snow with continued weather is the weatherman's offering for Appleton and vicinity for Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Similar predictions have been forecast over most of the midwest for the next 24 hours. Winds are shifting in the east and south-east, a good indication that wet weather is on the way.

Moderate temperatures were recorded over most of Wisconsin last night and Tuesday. At 6 o'clock this morning the mercury registered 34 degrees above zero. The Appleton, and at moon it registered 40 degrees above.

WORKMAN HAS POSSIBLE FRACTURE OF VERTEBRA

X-ray examination has revealed that Willard Vander Velden, Kimberly man injured yesterday morning at the Kimberly-Clark mill, has no skull fracture, but possibly a fracture of one of the vertebrae of the neck. Vander Velden, who is confined to St. Elizabeth hospital, was injured when he was caught on a revolving shaft at the mill.

Liquor Prices Down This Year, Bootleggers Admit

A survey in Appleton reveals that the depression hasn't neglected the bootleggers any more than anyone else. Holiday liquor prices, it is shown, are largely dependant on the status of the bootlegger's pocketbook at the time when the purchase is made. This, however, applies only to the purchase of hard liquors, such as synthetic gin, alcohol or moonshine. Prices on beer, either by the barrel or the case, are about the same as they were a year ago.

Moonshine liquor and gin can be purchased at from 75 cents to $1.50 a pint or from 4 to 35 per gallon. Alcohol is sold largely by the gallon and can be purchased for from $4 to $6. One bootlegger stated that many Appleton people have adopted the practice of buying alcohol by the gallon and making their own "bathtub" gin. This is done by mixing the alcohol with water, glycerine and juniper essence. The glycerine is supposed to add a smoothness to the finished product.

Although these prices are quite general, it was learned that bargaining often results in purchase of the liquor at a price which sometimes goes as low as $2 per gallon. However, these lowest prices are secured generally by purchasing in five or ten gallon lots.

It also is possible to buy by the case, in either quart or pint bottles. Liquor bearing any of the old familiar labels.

Much Colored Alcohol

Bottles bearing labels of Old Crow, Johnny Walker, Three Star Hennessy and others are available. They come wrapped in tissue paper and put up in fancy boxes—but all of these wrappings are manufactured in the vicinity of Appleton, where the whiskey is made. Prices on these goods range from $30 to $60 per case—also depending on the bootlegger's immediate need for cash. In many instances the whiskey is nothing more than colored alcohol.

It also is possible to purchase finest Canadian liquors, scotch, rye, bourbon and others—but these, which are smuggled across the border and brought here by rum-runners, cost fancy prices ranging from $60 to $120 per case. One bootlegger stated that since the depression started the number of customers for this type of goods has fallen off alarmingly.

Another bootlegger stated that the Christmas business this year was done mostly in that class of goods which is made in this vicinity, aged for about a year, bottled and then fitted with fancy labels manufactured here. He said many of the customers who previously paid high prices for imported stock, have changed their orders and taken the cheaper goods.

Beer Prices Vary

Beer prices ranged from $2 to $5 per case of 24 bottles or from 4 to $6 per quarter barrel—delivered. This price is about the same as it was a year ago.

By the glass beer can now be purchased for 10 and 15 cents. One bootlegger said he didn't think it would be long before all of the "retailers" would reduce their prices to 10 cents because the competition is so keen. Many of the places retailing this beverage now serve lunches every day. Other places make a practice of serving, on certain nights, hot chicken, duck, goose or turkey lunches, soups or broths, frog legs, fish, spaanferkel and other fancy dishes.

"All in all," one bootlegger lamented, "times ain't what they used to be. This racket is in a depression also. I'm afraid the good old days are gone forever."

"But, just the same, I'd hate to see the prohibition law repealed."

JACOBY QUILTS AFTER QUARREL WITH PARTNER

Culbertson Lead Cut Down
By 250 Points in Contract Bridge Battle

BY TOM O'NEIL

New York—(AP)—Oswald Jacoby resigned as partner of Sidney S. Lenz early today after much mutual criticism in a session during which they cut 250 points off the lead of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson in the prolonged test of rival systems of contract bridge.

Psychic bids by Jacoby toward the end of the session touched off the fireworks. Prior to that Jacoby accused Lenz of making misplays which enabled the Culbertsons to fulfill contracts.

Referring to "rotten" bids by his partner, Lenz at first said there was no possibility of Jacoby returning to the match and Jacoby said he could not go on being publicly criticized by Lenz, "especially when the criticisms are to cover up errors of his own."

Came a prolonged conference in secret, friends of each trying to make peace. The upshot was an announcement that Lenz would have a partner tonight, presumably Commander Winfield Ligger, Jr., and that Jacoby would be back in the match later.

The Culbertsons won five of eight rubbers of the session, their plus being reduced to 16,840 largely because Culbertson went down 1,400 points once in a lump. The rubber standing three rubbers past the two-thirds mark became 19 for Culbertson's side and 44 for Lenz's.

Mrs. Culbertson returned to the match after a holiday absence. Prior to the session Jacoby expressed the opinion privately that it was impossible for the Culbertsons' lead to be overtaken. He figured that he and Lenz must win at least 26 of the remaining rubbers.

It so happens that the session involving the most criticism of partners also saw the most brilliant playing of any of the fourteen sessions. Each side made end plays, so that opponents were forced to lead away from kings up to aces—queens or the like. Culbertson made an end play, unnecessarily playing a king in order to prevent opponents from forcing him to lead. He almost made a triple squeeze play.

The psychic bids by Jacoby, which were the immediate cause of the resignation, were on a hand in which his only face cards were a king and a queen. He bid one no trump over Mrs. Culbertson's one spade. Culbertson doubled and Jacoby then bid two clubs, having only four clubs, the highest of which was the eight spot. Culbertson read the bids as psychic and bid two no trump. Mrs. Culbertson raised him to three and they made five.

In another hand Mrs. Culbertson made one no trump when she could have been set and in the same rubber Culbertson wound up making three no trump on a contract for two when he could have been set. Jacoby expressed the opinion that on both these hands Lenz made "stupid" plays.

Psychic Bid Leads To Tiff And Ends Pairing At Bridge

BY MORRIS WATSON

New York—(AP)—Bridgers Jacoby and Lenz last night came to a parting of the ways. It was Jacoby who announced the parting.

Oswald's announcement came at the end of the penultimate rubber of the evening. He had made a psychic bid and Lenz turned to him angrily. "Why do you make those rotten bids? I can't read your hand. I don't know what you have. You are having a lot of fun in this game. Give me some. Give me a chance to bid."

Jacoby started to answer, then pressed his lips. The time was 12:23. "Shall we play another rubber?" asked Culbertson.

Jacoby jumped up. He was in full dress, ready to go to a night club. "Not with me, you won't!" he said.

"Under the rules," reminded Culbertson's referee, "you must play another rubber."

Jacoby wavered a moment, undecided. Then he sat down. Play on the last rubber started.

"Sidney," Jacoby said quietly, "in a hand of the second rubber tonight you made an absolutely stupid defensive play, and then you criticised me. I am resigning right now as your partner."

Lenz was taken by surprise. "Well—," he gasped, "well, sir, well, sir, all right, sir."

"The play you made was absolute—"

Lenz and Jacoby took five diamond tricks at the start and Lenz also could have taken tricks with the king of hearts and king of clubs, but passed up a heart trick till too late. He was forced to lead away from the king of clubs up to Culbertson's queen.

Hand Starts Argument

The bidding: south pass; west one spade; north pass; east two diamonds; south pass; west two no trump; all pass.

On the first trick Jacoby false-carded with the seven of clubs, playing the eight of clubs. The result was that Lenz failed to lead clubs when he got in and an opportunity to set the Culbertsons was lost. Jacoby argued that Lenz should have understood the false-carding.

Lenz conceded the last five tricks because whatever he led the Culbertsons could take everything. Had he led clubs when he led the king of spades he would have got in again and had three good club tricks.

Culbertson expressed the hope that Lenz and Jacoby would patch things up, adding that a better partner than Jacoby could not be found.

Lenz has taken much larger sets than Jacoby, who has made few misplays and encountered little trouble with his psychics. He has made game contracts five times when doubled and shown intuition as to the only leads possible to set slam contractions.

ly stupid and there was no excuse—," Jacoby continued. Lenz waved his hand to shut him off.

"Why talk about it?" he asked. Culbertson left the room. Mrs. Culbertson, who returned to the game as her husband's partner last night, sat in embarrassed silence. Lenz and Jacoby stared at each other for a moment. The latter turned sharply on his heel and walked out.

Both gave out short statements to the press. Jacoby said he resented the "constant public criticism" by Lenz, which, he contended, was made "to cover up Lenz's errors." Lenz said, simply, "our styles of bidding don't seem to fit together."

Peacemaker Walter Malowin, aide to Lenz in the preparation of analyses, brought them together behind closed doors. When they emerged Jacoby was calm, collected.

"My written resignation is in the hands of Mr. Lenz to play as he sees fit," he announced.

"I will have a new partner tomorrow night," said Lenz. "Mr. Jacoby, however, will play again in the match."

WOULD REWARD BADGER FOR INVENTION GIFT

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Because of his inventions which will probably save the government about $1,000,000 during the present decade, Master Sergeant Paul R. Nelson of La-Crosse should have his retirement rank and pay raised from $50 a month to a captain's rank and $331.25 monthly pay, according to provisions of a bill introduced in Congress by Rep. James A. Frear of Hudson.

This bill was originally introduced by Rep. Meritt Hull of Black River Falls during the last Congress but there was no action on it, although the war department favored the bill. Hull did not return to Congress this year, having been defeated by Gardner Whitrow, of La-Crosse, and Rep. Frear introduced the bill in behalf of Nelson.

Sgt. Nelson served for 30 years in the coast artillery and during the war held the rank of captain. He invented a simplified conducting cable for submarine mine control and gave this invention to the government.

It has been estimated that Nelson's invention will save the government $1,000,000 in maintenance alone in 10 years. Concerning Nelson's gift, Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war in 1928, said, "It is such actions as this that convince me of the future safety and glory of our country."

5-YEAR PLAN DRAFTED FOR TELEVISION

Committee Anticipates Full Development Within Period

BY ROBERT MARK

Copyright 1931 by Cons. Press

Washington—(CPA)—A five-year plan for television, anticipating the full development of the visual art within that time, has been drafted by the radio industry and submitted for official sanction.

Based upon use of the ultra high frequencies, those channels in the upper reaches of the spectrum hitherto regarded as useless, the radio manufacturers' association's television committee has submitted to the federal radio commission a series of recommendations embodying the new plan. Scientists of the leading companies engaged in television experiments collaborated in the drafting of the plan.

Use of the existing four television bands in the so-called continental short waves eventually would be abandoned as unsatisfactory, under the plan. Ghost images, like the double exposures of the old movies, and serious fading, which distorts the images transmitted, are the most serious ailments of television transmission in these bands. Moreover, the bands are held to be too narrow to permit of anything like nationwide development and the signals transmitted too cramped to permit the sending of pictures that are not marred by flicker and that are not dim and blurry.

The television committee suggests that the recommendations be made by the commission to the international radio conference to be held in Madrid next fall, for observance by all nations. The ultra-high frequencies now are outside the realm of international jurisdiction, for when the last international session was held five years ago they were viewed as utterly worthless for practical purposes. Wide bands, ranging from 35,000 to 50,000 kilocycles, would be staked off for use by television experimenters and to care for the future development of the art.

Remove "Static"
These ultra high frequencies simulate light waves rather than radio impulses. Transmission is by "line of sight," which means that a particular television station appears only only will serve the area immediately surrounding it. Thus the engineers feel it will be possible, ultimately, to duplicate many television stations on the same frequency band to serve only their local areas, without objectionable interference.

D. E. Reardon, chairman of the R. M. A. television committee, declares that the four 11-kilocycle channels now set aside for television are too few to serve the whole country. He pointed out that use of the ultra-high frequencies, with provision also for the synchronization of sight with sound, seemed the most promising course. Whereas the channels now used are 100 kilocycles wide, often times the width of the ordinary broadcast channel, the committee proposes that a channel width of 10 kilocycles be permitted for experimentation in the ultra high frequencies. It is also to provide adequate space for the transmission of pictures of good detail, as well as space for the accompanying sound program.

POLITICAL DRIFTS
Two elections last week on opposite sides of the globe, one in Australia and the other in Oklahoma, showed a singular sameness of thought.
English speaking people, or the entire Nordic races for that matter, may be radical at times, but not in periods like these.
In Australia the Labor party which, during a considerable share of its incumbency, represented an extreme phase of socialism, was decisively defeated although not in as pronounced a fashion as the job was done in England. This was brought about, with the exception of the Province of New South Wales, by a loss of the principal industrial areas which shows that labor will not itself support the Labor party when its program or record in office has been unsuitable or unsatisfactory.
Australia presents in fact a fair study of socialistic performance and what may reasonably be expected from it. It appears satisfied that the socialistic state is not all it was cracked up to be.
The Australian experience uncovered one of the main difficulties in social theories, their wastage; the taking of money in the form of taxes from those thought to be able to afford it and using it for nonproductive as well as needless purposes. Here is defeated the very first and basic principle of the right of the government to take any man's property,—its need.
But the socialist leaders had their way. They achieved their life's ambition. They got the money. They gave little thought to the consequences of mispending it. They even built a national center, a new capital city, for which there was no need, but broad of avenue, picturesque of setting, beautiful of architecture, and,—expensive; and now they literally have no one to live in it.
In other words through the coercion of taxation they forced those of means to build this city and the money invested cannot produce any income. It is frozen. What is the use of owning a city full of buildings without a tenant to pay rent? The net result is they have drained capital but to no purpose. Now capital hasn't the money but it is represented by useless structures, extravagances. In other words, it has ceased in large measure to be wealth and become a burden.
But the lure of socialism, in whatever form it is mixed, is hard to resist. The claim is always presented to the workers that they are not securing a just share of what they create, or are compelled to bear an unfair share of the burden of government. The promise is always to more heavily tax others. But more money raised and more money spent get a people nowhere if the spending be unnecessary, and therefore useless.
At the same time that Australia was trying to throw off the lethargy of socialism "Alfalfa Bill" Murray was going before the people of Oklahoma with some pet ideas he could not get through the legislature and therefore submitted to a referendum. Oklahoma poured ice-cold water all over the projects.
Governor Murray's leading card was an income tax proposal only about one-third as strong as Governor LaFollette's in this state, but the great majority,—and they wouldn't have to pay under it,—voted against it.
Too many who vote have memories that burn with distrust concerning the men who spend and the purposes for which the money is to be spent.
The fight against this proposal in Oklahoma was, according to newspaper accounts, along these lines:
We were told that if we had a tax on inheritances it would help the humble. The tax came but so far as help to the humble is concerned they never heard about it. Then a great light was seen across the skies. If we could only have income taxes despair would be forced out of the land. The taxes came and have been constantly paid by those taxed but despair seems to have spread everywhere. So we were told that income taxes weren't high enough and we raised them up and permitted both the state and national governments to impose them and yet general property taxes rose. And now when they promise some more if we will raise them again, it seems to us that it is about time to shut off spending.

Anyway that's the way it was argued and decided by the people in Oklahoma.
JAPAN AND THE TREATIES
Japan gives no indication of heeding the latest protest of France, Great Britain and the United States against her spreading military aggressions in Manchuria. In fact her reply has the flavor of a warning to other nations to mind their own business.
Never since the beginning of the present century has the state of world affairs offered a better opportunity for Japan to consummate aggressive ambitions in Manchuria, if those ambitions are actually mercenary.
In the distress of the Western World as an aftermath of the World war, with the nations divided and distracted, Japan may be aware that public opinion in these countries cannot be aroused to meet force with force, and her refusal to check her military movements against the Chinese may be notice to the world that she recognizes no law but her own.
International treaties, solemnly entered into, appear to have been disregarded. Solemn pledges, reiterated during the last three months, appear to have been broken. The power is in Japan's hands to go ahead. Her militarists may be in control and if so we may expect them to display nothing but contempt for those international mechanisms for maintaining world peace such as the covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg pact which Japan herself helped to erect.
The fundamental questions of Japan's moral right to territorial and commercial expansion commensurate with her status as a world power; of the growing disorders in China following the revolution against the Manchu dynasty and the consequent threat to Japan's interests in Manchuria; or of the justice of the notorious Twenty-one Demands forced upon China during the World war, are subjects of fair debate.
Under present circumstances Western Powers must limit themselves to an attempt to vindicate existing treaties and to declare Japan's actions contrary to the sanctions of international law. The difficulty is that as yet it cannot be clearly determined that Japan has elected to take the outlaw course. She has certain rights in Manchuria. She has gone beyond them. But she asserts a purpose of placing outposts in a country overrun with anarchy and with the idea of protecting what is legitimately hers. The future alone will disclose whether her professed purpose be her purpose in fact.
McFADDEN'S ATTACK
Aside from the genial Secretary Hurley and the dry and gloomy Fess of Ohio, the President seems to have few of those warm, bubbling personal friends willing to take up an argument or pick a quarrel on his behalf on any street car or corner.
Perhaps it was lack of such support that invited the unmanly personal attack from Congressman McFadden. That Mr. Hoover had deliberately "sold out" his country and was a traitor to rank in eternal infamy with Benedict Arnold might be expected as the statement of a crank or a dipomaniac, but more likely would take a combination of the two.
After all who knows but Mr. Hoover is carrying a horsehoe or rabbit's foot? Certainly a monthly attack from now until election day of the lurid character and hollow invention of the McFadden one will give Mr. Hoover about an even chance for re-election.

POST-UPPER
OF ALL the Mondays, the Monday after a long weekend is the worst. Just like the last one. . . like everyone gets that glassy-eyed look. . . like when they're drinking coffee at breakfast. . . don'tcha know how that looks? . . . well, like someone—someone quite sleepy—when he or she is sipping the early a. m. coffee. . . the Intelligence Quotient is at a very low ebb. . .
If you think the stock market is weak, you don't know the half of it, dearie. In Chicago, there's an automobile agency that's giving away from 10 to 100 shares of assorted stocks with every purchase of a used car. And it wasn't so long ago that a single share of one of those stocks was worth over $300. Who says America wasn't nutty a while ago. . .
Amalgamated Gadgets stock wasn't included in the selection. Gosh, doesn't the stuff even make good premium material? And it has such pretty engraving on it, too. . .
This'll Be About All of the Christmas Stuff Ode to a Schoolma'am (On giving a pair of Silk Stockings)
Some hose are made to water lawns, While others all our kegs, But these, more fortunate than they, Encase a schoolma'am's legs.
Now, why I say "more fortunate" Is just to make a pun, For surely, if they liked their job, They wouldn't break or run. —Weary Gleaner
But there's one more thing about Christmas—and that's all the people who quit living by means of guns, automobiles, likker and other means. Something like 200 of them that day. Gosh, is it Christmas or is it war?
They're growing in number and they'll continue to grow until next November. We mean the Hoover jokes. They're all based pretty much on the same principle. . .
And another thing about Christmas—a fellow really should catch a cold about now to start using up the gift handkerchiefs. . .
And starting the fire with the Christmas cigars—if the furnace will take them. . .
Somebody stop us. Sure—just show us some of the Christmas bills. . .

CARELESS
I could not be a fashion plate, However hard I'd try. It always seems to be my fate To wear a roving tie, And though my tailor does his best To keep me slick and trim, The dog hair clinging to my vest, Cannot be charged to him.
Some upon disaster's brink, Remember their attire, And always seem to stop to think— Before they're splashed with mire. But I, although I know it's wrong, So heedlessly to rush, Forget my clothes and plod along Right through the pool of slush.
And some men fold their coats with care The women folks to please, Some keep their trousers in repair, Apparently with ease, But mine grow wrinkled in a day, And soon their lustre lose, By gathering the powdered clay From little Janet's shoes.
Well, let mine be the wrinkled coat Which marks the careless chap, I'll take greater happiness Of Janet's happy nap. I'd rather all the world should see My raiment's shabby state, And keep her love, than live to be Some tailor's fashion plate. (Copyright, 1931, Edgar A. Guest)

Personal Health Talks
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
GONE ARE THE DAYS WHEN THE DOCS PRONOUNCED THINGS
In the days of my youth in practice it was the custom of the people of the countryside, whenever we ordinary doctors seemed a bit puzzled or somewhat tentative about diagnosis, to summon Bill Jones, let us call him, and Bill generally pronounced it was never the majority of the attending physicians had thought it might be. When Bill rolled away in his calm, deliberate Stanhope all was quiet on the surface. The folks were satisfied. Yet Bill was a pretty awful doctor, even for his day. I remember a time when he and I held council over a very sick lad—his patient. When we were closeted I asked Bill if he had had a Wildcat test—the well known blood test for typhoid fever. Bill said "What's that for?" I thought for a moment he was pulling my leg, but by gosh he really had never heard of it, and when I explained it he was eager to have the test for his patient. Nevertheless, Bill kept in pronouncing things in his "ride" for many years, as had his father and grandfather before him, probably because they had gone before him.
I am afraid some of our medical brethren still think they can pronounce things and get away with it. That is the only reason I can see for the rather ridiculous attitude of many of the older docs in respect to catching cold. Altho anybody with half a brain knows there is no such thing as "resistance" these dusty old fellows who are so careful to inform you they are "scientific" still continue to wriggle out of every corner by mumbling something unintelligible about "lowered resistance". Their faith in the efficacy of that is like the child's faith in crossed fingers to protect him against being tagged "it".
My friend the miner, aged 63, says his work makes him appreciate fresh air, and he sleeps in a draft of good Colorado air every night, drawing his bed before the open window for that purpose. His belief is that to keep him fit and well. He cites an article by a medical woman who solemnly assured the magazine readers that one may take cold from cold air yet she advised them to air the bedroom every day. The miner thinks this illogical and I agree with him; he thinks it would be better to keep the bedroom window sealed up if there is any risk of being injured by the cold air.
But at that the lady doc is quite as consistent as are any of the old women medical or health authorities on our own gender who teach the public a lot of hooey about this. Formerly I enjoy arguing with the old timers. But there is not much fun in it any more. When you pin one down he can always squirm out of it with some mumble about "resistance" or if it comes to a pinch he can switch his meaning—no two mean just the same thing by "common cold" and in fact you can't get an old timer to commit himself in a definition of what he means by a "cold". I'll give 'em credit for that—they're too foxxy to tell just what they mean. The public is very glib about it, you see. The old timers have only to say "Everybody knows what simple cold is." Yeh but if only we could find somebody who would dare to tell!
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Safety First For Singers
The doctors say my tonsils must be removed. I earn my living as a singer. What are the chances of injury to my singing voice if the operation is done by a competent specialist? (T. R. E.)
Answer—Even the best of them may injure the tissues adjacent to and perhaps adherent to the tonsils. This happens only in rare cases. As a rule removal of diseased tonsils improves the singing voice. In your place I would elect diathermy extirpation as safer than surgical tonsillectomy.
Philadelphia is broke and bankers won't lend it any money. After all, it's only the city of brotherly love.
Yet, those alleged city hall loafers probably know half a loaf is better than none.

A Bystander In Washington
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—The example set by the late Dwight Morrow of New Jersey when he entered the United States senate probably will be followed very little by the new "crop" of senators who are now making their debut on the hill.
Morrow didn't speak in the senate except to vote and answer present the whole time he served. Several times it was rumored he might make a speech, but he never did.
There are 17 in the "freshman class" of the present congress. It's a pretty safe bet that before long most of them will have sounded off in one way or another.
Three of the group may be a bit reluctant or slow in starting. But the other 14—all of whom are lawyers—may be expected to get underway at about the first opportunity.
Barbour of New Jersey, a thread manufacturer; Coolidge of Massachusetts, who makes machinery; and Mrs. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas, who succeeds her husband, are the three expected to be among the least loquacious.
To Hear From Lewis
J. Hamilton Lewis, the colorful senator from Illinois, doubtless will get into action quickly. His deep resonant voice is capable of charming nearly any audience.
"Jim Ham" already has indicated that he will get off to an early start. Months ago he requested that he be given the space on the senate floor he had when he served before. His reason was that he wanted to feel at home from the start.
Dickinson of Iowa is another. Al ready he has matched wits with one of the senate's best orators and debaters—Pat Harrison of Mississippi—in an open debate on the tariff and probably feels that he has been baptized sufficiently.
Then, too, his years of service in the house probably make him feel confident to speak his mind at any time.
Hull of Tennessee, White of Maine—both veterans of the house—doubtless feel the same way.
Bulow of South Dakota, who comes to Washington widely-heralded for his dry humor and ability to wisecrack, is another of the incoming group expected to be heard from soon.
Costigan Speaks Up
Costigan of Colorado has given evidence that he is fond of speaking up and when something annoys him. True, the evidence thus far has been confined to his complaint that cranes in the Washington zoo made so much noise that he couldn't sleep, but that may give an insight to the man.
There'll be worse things than cranes to disturb the senator's peace of mind in the days ahead.
Old-timers in the senate like Gore of Oklahoma and Neely of West Virginia, back again after an enforced absence, may also be expected to get off to an early vocal start.

Seen And Heard In New York
BY WILLIAM GAINES
New York—If you have trouble deriving cube roots, and for some peculiar reason want to get some in a hurry, you might solicit the aid of Urbane L. Barrett.
Give him any number and Mr. Barrett can determine the cube root in his head, 60 times faster than a calculating machine. At least, he says it's 60 times faster than an expert can handle a machine. It probably would be 400 times faster, the way you and I handle one.
I don't know exactly what people do with cube roots after they get them, but engineers seem to have some use for them. Mr. Barrett advises engineers to stick to their mechanical calculators, however, and not spend time trying to master his method. He admits that his system is of little, if any, practical good.
A Los Angeles man, he dropped into the office when he came to New York on business and gave some startling demonstrations.
Then he went out to Columbia university and startled members of the faculty club. Incidentally, he found cube roots in the east to be the same as they are in the west.
School Boy's Vengeance
Mr. Barrett framed up on the elusive cube root purely out of spite.
When he was 17, attending a religious college in Texas, he had a lot of difficulty with this phase of his math work. He even paid 50 cents for a book describing the various short cuts to mathematical solutions, but learned that no short cut to cube roots was known.
That set young Barrett to thinking very seriously, and one day when he was making a cow a brilliant inspiration came to him.
He devised a method based on "memory" concentration and application of some fundamental properties of numbers, and forever afterward no cube root was to escape his lightning mental detection.
His severest test came when the manager of an establishment selling calculating machines challenged him to a queer duel.
Mr. Barrett stood upon a platform and all of the firm's salesmen were grouped about him, each manipulating a machine. The manager would shout a fancy number, which was the starting signal. Mr. Barrett's mental speed shamed the mechanical opposition from start to finish in this cube root contest.
"I suppose the main contribution of my discovery is to show that nothing is impossible, once a man sets his mind upon it," says the modest Mr. Barrett.
He has transmitted his talent to his son, a schoolboy in Los Angeles. Barrett the younger can extract the cube root of any number up to the trillion in his noodle.
Elevator Etiquette
New York men who never remove their hats in an office building elevator when there are women passengers, usually do in a hotel elevator under the same circumstances.
Men from the south and some places in the west, not accustomed to "Yankee" manners, appear disconcerted when they ride in lifts here. You see them fumbling at their hats, undecided whether to do as the Romans do or keep up the old chivalric teachings.
The gesture of politeness is not practicable in this city where elevators are packed like sardine cans. A man holding his hat at his side takes up about as much room as two men standing.

ACTION IN PALESTINE
Dec. 29, 1917, British forces drove the Turk back two miles on a 13-mile front north of Jerusalem and captured five towns.
Towns captured by the British were: Ras Arkus, Es Saffa, Anata-ram, Kuluania and Beitunia.
General Allenby advanced his British-Egyptian army, supported by French, Italian and Arab auxiliaries against the increasing resistance of the Turk.
Between the time of the loss of Jerusalem and the Turks' retreat along the Jericho and Nabalia Roads a dozen miles beyond the Holy City, the Turk suffered heavy losses in killed and wounded.
By Dec. 29, 1917, all Belgium and northern France were under deep snow with the thermometer considerably below the freezing point. It was in this weather that the winter campaigns got under way.

PATMAN URGES FULL PAYMENT TO VETERANS

Texas Democrat Addresses Veterans of Foreign Wars in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(P)—Immediate payment in full of World War veterans' adjusted service compensation certificates was urged by Congressman Wright Patman, Democrat, Texas, who spoke here last night before 1,400 members of the Veterans of the Foreign Wars and associated groups.

A measure, sponsored by Congressman Patman and now in the hands of the house ways and means committee, proposed legislation definitely opposed at this time by President Hoover and Secretary Mellon.

"They call us bonus racketeers, treasury raiders," he said. "They say we're trying to bankrupt the government, but I say they oppose us with misrepresentation and falsehood."

"We have logic, reason, truth and justice on our side. By helping 3,500,000 veterans we will help the plain, average citizen; not the very rich and not the very poor, but the man who will use the money for necessities and comforts he needs."

Source of Funds

Patman said that of the money already disbursed to veterans, $140,000,000 came out of a $390,000,000 adjusted service certificate fund and $330,000,000 out of the government life insurance fund, but that so far the United States treasury had been untouched.

Under his bill, the Texas pointed out, Wisconsin veterans would receive $52,000,000 face value of their certificates, while nationally the payment would amount to $18 per capita.

A survey showed, he said, that after the 50 per cent loans were granted the veterans spent 65 per cent of their loan money for comforts and necessities, 20 per cent for investments, including homes, 3 per cent for automobiles, and only 7 per cent for uses of little or no tangible or lasting value.

In addition to recommending legislation benefiting veterans' widows and orphans, Patman advocated levying a tax on interests that profited during the war sufficient to pay the service certificate disbursements.

Patman is accompanied on a speaking tour in behalf of his bill by James E. Van Zandt, Altoona, Pa., junior vice commander of the National Veterans of Foreign Wars. O. C. Claus, Racine, state commander, also spoke last night.

Scouts Work In Wall Street To Learn Men's Fashions

BY HARVEY ANDERSON (Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)

New York — (CPA) — Bears and bulls, bankers and brokers, and other Wall Street habitués have been under espionage this week—and it had nothing to do with Santa Claus or congressional investigations or prohibition enforcement.

At regular intervals certain men, who looked like clerks or brokerage house customers—perhaps even like bond buyers—dropped down to Wall Street this week to count buttons, collars and double-breasted coats, and thus discover what the correct dress business man is currently wearing.

The latest census in the financial district, made by the field scouts of a trade publication in the men's wear field, discloses that the double-breasted suit has apparently maintained its ground, won only three years ago; that the general tendency is away from buttons where buttons are not indispensable—two or three on the coat front, one or two on the coat sleeve; that the high-grade professional man is still adamant on the starched collar for business wear; and that dark blues and grays will be the preferred fabrics for 1931-1932 business wear.

It was not only around limousines and above the boiling rim of the security exchanges, however, that the scouts gathered their information. They know that what the big men of Wall Street wear, the smaller men will soon adopt. A clerk may have written up new quotations on

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"SUE, you're grand," Jack's voice was talking on. "I had some crazy half-baked ideas of things stopping when you got yourself tied up with Harry. You knew that."

"No," Sue shook her head. But across the months that had passed she seemed to hear his voice again: "Sue, you don't know that you are really going to marry Harry?"

At the hotel, they entered an almost deserted lobby. The clerks behind the desk looked tired. Jack registered and Sue watched the few people who drifted about the lobby. A girl came out of a telephone booth. There was something oddly familiar about her. She looked straight at Sue. She was Sally Bradley.

Sue smiled and spoke. Jack, hearing her voice, turned, too.

Sally was a little embarrassed. But she came over to them.

"Have you moved to our leading hostelry?" she asked.

"For a few nights," Jack answered. "Things are rather crowded out at Harry's, with Nancy's broken shoulder, you know."

"Of course," she nodded. She seemed watching for someone. But her eyes had room enough to contain some speculation as to just why Jack and Sue Thornton had suddenly left Harry Becker's.

"Shall I tell Ruth you are staying here?" she asked Sue.

"If you will," Sue answered. "That will be splendid."

Jack and Sue moved to the elevator. Sally walked along with them. As they stepped into the car they noticed that Sally crossed the lobby and sat down in a large chair. The elevator was slow enough in starting for them to get a view of the whole thing.

Jack's eyes met Sue's in a questioning look.

"Once in their room," Sue answered. "Meeting someone whom she doesn't want anyone to know she's meeting. I suppose she would do anything to get her own way."

Inwardly Sue's inner voice had added two more words. "Like Corrinne." She tried to push them down.

"I don't like Sally Bradley," Jack answered. Sue was glad that he didn't. "She's a parasite, and she doesn't seem like much of a sport. Her sister is worth seven of her."

"Absolutely."

"Oh, by the way, our house will be ready for us in one more week," Jack said suddenly. "Want to buy furniture and things tomorrow afternoon?"

"I'd love it!"

Buying furniture. Chairs and tables and rugs that would be theirs would make her forget Corrinne.

"I'll meet you for lunch, then we'll go down ourselves," Jack talked on. "How about a red leather lounging chair? I've always wanted one."

"Oh, my dear, we'll have all red leather chairs if you want them," Sue answered laughingly.

Life was happy again—if only Corrinne hadn't been so cruel.

Jack was thinking of the same thing. Suddenly he spoke.

NEXT: Sue meets Corrinne.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

NEW INTEREST NEEDED TO FORGET OLD LOVE

Dear Virginia Vane: I hope you can help me as you have helped others. In the past few months I have lost a man I loved dearly. He saw his mistake, told me that he did not love me, and I am still hurt and miserable. Before I gave up friends for him, I was popular. Now I do not seem to be popular at all. I am trying to forget him but it seems impossible. Please tell me what to do.

DEPRESSED.

Go right on forgetting—but don't remind yourself all the time of how much you've forgotten. That is to say, don't make this job a negative business. Do something for yourself during this painful period of putting aside bitter-sweet memories for good and all.

You're trying to be a brave girl but perhaps you're not giving yourself a chance. Perhaps you're not finding anything new to think about so that however much you strive to keep a stiff upper lip you're apt to break down because your mind goes back again and again to what you've lost.

Try to replace that image of your faithless love with a whole new set of ideas and interests. Your problem has been discussed before in these columns, and several times liked correspondents have written to tell me how they've got their minds out of the old rut, and have determinedly made a new happiness for themselves.

You can work the same trick, if you'll find something—work, a hobby, a new interest which will give you an outlet for your nervous energy and force you to think of something other than your wrecked love affair.

Not long ago, I talked to a young woman whose best friend had shot on the husband she loved dearly. The wife was left with two children and a sufficiency of money to make work unnecessary. She endured agonies of jealousy and resentment. She tried, for her children's sake, to overcome these feelings—and to put the thought of her husband and all he'd meant to her, out of her mind. But she hadn't anything to do, and she couldn't find anything to do.

Then one day some friend asked her to join a dancing class—a perfectly interesting dancing class and the deserted wife suddenly decided that there was an outlet. She told me quite seriously that she made up her mind to be the best dancer, and the most efficient pupil in the class, and every day for a while she found release from her suffering and her dreary memories by throwing herself into the job of learning new and intricate steps.

Perhaps it doesn't sound possible to you. Depressed—that anything as trivial as a dancing lesson could take a woman's mind off her wor-

ANALYSIS REPORTS HOARDING OF MONEY

MILWAUKEE, (AP)—Hundreds of dollars are being hoarded while market are neglected, says an analysis by the Wisconsin Bankshares corporation.

The analysis says the money in circulation is more than is needed to carry on business.

"Savings and other time deposits in all banks of the country as of June 30 last," says the analysis, "amounted to more than $28,000,000,000, which was only slightly less than the amount on deposit in the middle of 1928."

The analysis explains that the timidity of capital seems to be mainly due to "doubts about the ability of the country to make a recovery from depression in the face of the tangled and disorganized state of international finance and trade."

Value of construction projects in Wisconsin in November totaled $2,112,000 as against $4,524,000 in October, the analysis says. Registration of new automobiles in the state totaled 2,574 last month as against 2,163 in November, 1929.

In keeping the opposing football team, the Rangers, from making a goal during a close game at Glasgow, Scotland, recently, John Thompson, 22, of the Celtics was knocked down by a player and killed.

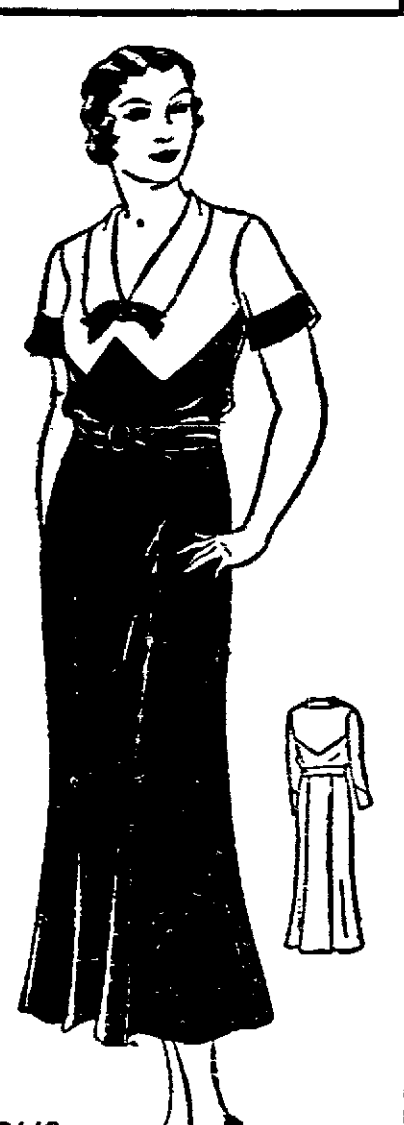

ries. But it can be done. Anything at all which gets you interested, gives you some sort of goal to work for, however insignificant will help to tide you over this dreary interval.

Your popularity won't come back with a rush. You've got to wait for people to realize that you're no longer an engaged girl, and that you're still attractive. This will take time. You mustn't fall a victim to melancholia in the meanwhile. Buck up now and find something which interests you. You can work out your own salvation as other women have.

MURIEL: You'll just have to give him time to come back. Nothing you can do to hold him, if he wants to drift away, and there is a good deal you can do to spoil your friendship with him, if you prove too eager. Try to get used to thinking of him as a friend. He hasn't as yet encouraged you to think anything else and you're only making yourself miserable, placing too much importance on his every word and act. Take it all easier if you possibly can, and things will work out more smoothly for you.

Skirt Panels

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON

Much study has been given to the creating of this smart model for the woman of heavier build.

It has so many points that flatters the matronly figure.

It has the becoming V-neck, made even more slimming through the shaped collar with pert bow tie. Panels at the front and the back of the skirt, give important height to the figure.

It combines printed and plain crepe silk.

It's a splendid type for woollens.

For home wear, two shades of wool jersey or novelty rayon crepe is especially nice.

BLOTCHY SKIN IS SIGN OF POOR HEALTH

BY ALICIA HART

It really is amazing how lovely an evenly tanned skin can look and yet how appalling a skin that has brown blotches here and there.

Probably one reason in the different reactions we have to these two lies in the fact that the former usually accompanies buoyant health and life in the open and the latter comes from bad health.

Those brown blotches that you may have been worrying about probably are liver spots. This means that your digestion is not working 100 per cent perfectly. Circulation is clogged. Your whole system is thrown out and the brown spots are danger signals that your body is throwing out.

The first thing, therefore, to do for such blotches is to regulate your health. More sleep, simpler diet, more exercise. You must attack this kind of complexion from within. If you do not succeed yourself, see a physician. You may need a stricter regime than you know yourself and he will put you on it.

If your skin merely looks dingy, that is another matter. Usually this comes from two things, both of which can be aided. First, your skin may not be clean as it can be, and it probably isn't or you wouldn't have this continued dingy look. Second, your skin may need a little stimulation to get the circulation going good.

Neither of these things is difficult. Both require a strict daily routine for beauty's sake. Only such a routine can give you what you want.

DUCK EXTERMINATION SEEN BY AUTHORITY

WICHITA, Kas., (AP)—Extermination of wild ducks not only in Kansas, but in "this part of the world," vocated that bag limits be reduced within two or three years was predicted by J. C. Doze, former state game and fish commissioner, following a 10-day trip through western Kansas.

He estimated, ducks had decreased in number at least 75 percent in the last two years and advocated that bag limits be reduced from 15 to five birds. As an added conservation measure he urged that sportsmen kill only drakes.

... For Fewer and less severe colds this winter...

Mothers welcome Vick "Colds-Control" Plan

Mothers are constantly faced with the problem of colds and their costs. It is the mothers, therefore, who especially appreciate the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home—just perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. The Vick Plan is made possible by a new preparation, Vicks Nose and Throat Drops, based on a new idea in preventing colds. It is a companion product to VapoRub, the modern external method of treating colds. That is, they aid and supplement each other.

HERE, BRIEFLY, IS THE NEW VICK PLAN:

1. BEFORE a Cold Starts —
2. AFTER a Cold Starts —

Watch yourself and your children when exposed to anything that you know is apt to bring on a cold, such as—Contact with others having fresh colds—crowds, stuffy ill-ventilated rooms, public places—a night on a Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes in temperature—inhaling smoke, dust, gases—excesses in living, such as over-eating, which reduce body resistance—after a hard day when you are over-tired.

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long.

If the air-passages are badly clogged with mucus, melt some VapoRub in a bowl of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drop—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets digestion—especially of children.

Then—if you feel that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages, Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once, just a few drops up each nostril. Repeat every hour or so if needed. This will prevent many colds by stopping them before they get beyond the nose and throat—where most colds start.

TRIAL OFFER BY LOCAL DRUGGISTS

Proof of this Plan is in its trial—in your own home. Get a bottle of Vicks Drops today. Keep it alongside your trusted Vicks VapoRub. Use them together as directed. Their better "Control-of-Colds" will be noted in fewer colds—colds of less severity and shorter duration. An actual saving to you in money, loss of time and health. Otherwise, the test will cost you nothing. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

To Reduce your Family's "Colds-Tax"

COLLECTION OF TAXES STARTS ON WEDNESDAY

City Treasurer's Office Opens at 9 O'clock in Morning

Menasha — Collection of taxes in Menasha will open at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at the city office, according to C. A. Heckrodt, city treasurer. Tax payers are urged to bring their last year's receipts to avoid confusion and provide for better service.

In addition to real property and personal property taxes and assessments, collection of dog taxes will open Wednesday, Heckrodt stated. The fees are the same as last year, $1 for males and $2 for females, and the deadline for collection is Jan. 31.

The 1931 tax roll, completed Monday, totals $238,167, and includes real estate tax of $235,676.56; personal property of $1,187.31 and assessments for pavements, sidewalks, sewers, oiling, snow, weed cutting, delinquent bills and illegal real estate charge back.

The tax rate adopted this year is $2.00 on each $100 of assessed valuation, the lowest rate in effect here for years. The deferred payments, allowing a payment of 50 per cent in January and the remaining amount, plus 1 per cent, before June 30, is in effect here.

$9,500 IN TAXES ARE COLLECTED FIRST DAY

Neenah — A total of $9,517.83 was collected Monday by Walter Lochning, city treasurer, on the first tax collection day. This was somewhat smaller than the first day's collection last year, which was $12,000. A decrease in this year's tax rate over last year is partly responsible.

TWIN CITY DEATHS

MRS. W. D. GOLTZ
Neenah — Mrs. W. D. Goltz, 72, formerly of Neenah, died Sunday afternoon at Long Beach, Calif., according to word received here. A year ago Mrs. Goltz and her husband, a retired Soo line railroad engineer, left Neenah for California because of Mrs. Goltz's health. She was born at Oshkosh, where she spent several years before moving to Neenah where she resided for several years. She also resided at Stevens Point for a few years.

Surviving besides the widower are one daughter, Mrs. Verna Hoeler of Gary, Ind.; four brothers, George R. Zeltner, John Zeltner, Herman C. Zeltner, and Fred Zeltner, all of Oshkosh; and three sisters, Mrs. Robert Marsh of Ladysmith, Mrs. Oswald Lehmann of Lewiston, Mont., and Mrs. Henry Piper of Salt Lake City, Utah.

The body will be brought to Oshkosh for burial.

EDWIN E. PALMER

Neenah — Edwin E. Palmer, 41, of Antigo, son of the late Alfred Palmer, who was at one time an official of the Equitable Fraternal union, took his own life by turning on the gas Sunday at his office. No reason for the act was disclosed in a letter written to a brother, telling where the body could be found. He had for years participated in civic affairs at Antigo. He was a member of the American Legion and a second lieutenant in the officers' reserve corps. He was unmarried.

THOMAS B. BLAIR

Neenah — The funeral of Thomas B. Blair, 78, a lifelong resident here, was conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Oak Hill cemetery chapel. A funeral service, prepared several years ago for a friend by the deceased, was read by Edward Puchsch, a close friend, this taking place of the usual services conducted by a clergyman. Burial was at Oak Hill cemetery.

DANCE DARBOY, THURS.

Neenah — A dance by the Neenah Darboys will be given Thursday evening at the Grange hall.

IMPROVEMENTS IN AUTOMOBILES MADE DURING LAST YEAR

Despite Poor Business, 1932 Cars Promise Better Performance

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
If the automobile continues to improve in 1932 at the same rate it has in 1931, we may be the end of the new year see some of the most marvelous results on four wheels that have ever been produced.

For 1931, quite contrary to the general impression of the industry, proved to be one of the most prolific years for engineering developments in automotive history.

Freewheeling, introduced in the fall of 1930, so captured the approval of the riding public that now nearly every automobile includes this improvement, mostly as standard equipment.

Along with freewheeling have come further improvements in the transmission, of a finer, more silent and more positive mesh in the gears and a silent and easy shift.

Related somewhat to freewheeling is the automatic clutch which not only incorporates a freewheeling idea but eliminates use of the heavy clutch pedal altogether, except in starting and parking. Stutz, Packard and Chrysler are the innovators of this idea, although Bendix has offered a similar clutch control mechanism for adaptation to existing automobiles.

More Use of Rubber
Next to freewheeling and the synchro-mesh type of transmission, among the improvements of 1931, has come the effort of manufacturers to silence the automobile, eliminating vibration and practically suspending the entire car on rubber. Most advanced of all has been the "floating power" idea of Plymouth, in which the engine hangs in a sort of cradle of rubber supports at front and rear.

Being a Chrysler product it is only reasonable to expect it to be adopted by other Chrysler departments.

At the same time, a further effort to make riding easier has come in the form of the "ride selector" first introduced by Packard among the popular cars then taken up by Buick and others. This, with the thermostatically controlled hydraulic shock absorbers, shows the extent to which designers have gone to assure comfort to automotive passengers.

Bigger Cars, Better Cars
The work engineers still have to do for the improvement of coming automobiles is evidenced by the introduction of the dual valve principle by Stutz. Here four valves to each cylinder, with dual overhead camshafts, an improvement which the Stutz officials say will make their eight cylinders perform even better than 16-cylinder cars of the conventional two-valve design.

Yet, in the face of this development, more cars with larger engines have been presented in the past year. Twelve especially seem to be the engineering design of the day, for the bigger cars.

Further advancements, the last of which included such features as the aluminum engine of Marmont; aluminum heads and generally greater use of aluminum in the engine by other manufacturers; the "airwheel" type of tire, providing a much larger tire cross-section on a smaller wheel; greater streamlining of the body to reduce wind resistance and improve appearance; strengthening of the chassis by use of stronger cross-members and welding where formerly joints were bolted; installation of a power brake on the larger cars like the Pierce-Arrow and the Lincoln twelve; and finally introduction of "dual ratio" in the rear end, or choice between a low ratio for easy starting and a higher ratio for sustained great saving in engine performance, at ordinary driving conditions.

Early in 1931, automotive manufacturers agreed no longer to introduce new models at intervals during the year, in order to stabilize the industry. This was done generally although some of the manufacturers have introduced additional models which they had already planned before the time of the agreement or which were entirely new products.

And Still They Come
However, new names appeared in 1931 in the list of automobiles manufactured in the United States. First came the De Vaux, a six on the next to lower price class, which made its official debut at the Chicago Automobile Show late in January.

In New York, two weeks earlier, William C. Durant presented the American reproduction of the French Mathis. But nothing more has been heard of this car so far.

CLUB MEMBERS GIVE TALKS ON MANY SUBJECTS

Decoration of Streets for Next Holiday Season Is Discussed

New London—A program of short talks on the subjects of which were assigned by the program committee of the Rotary club, with Dr. F. J. Pfeiffer as chairman was given by Rotarians at their luncheon Monday noon at Elwood hotel. The first to speak was M. J. Heinz, who described his Christmas day. He was followed by George Thomas, who stated that the gifts he received on Christmas day spoke no German.

Harry B. Cady, gave his ideas on street decorations for next winter's holiday season. The fact that the city owns sufficient equipment, Mr. Cady said, would be a material aid in providing a good beginning for more elaborate decorations than were used this year. Mr. Cady believes that the two service clubs should be brought together to bring about a successfully planned scheme of street decoration for next year.

The results of the boys' Christmas party formed the basis of a short talk by F. R. Smith. The speaker stated that while it is difficult to judge the merits of such an undertaking as was assumed by the club he believed that the results are more reaching than might appear on the surface. A feeling of discontent which perhaps had been felt by the parents through varied instances between Rotarians as business men he believed was replaced by a feeling that after all a real bond of sympathy exists between the less fortunate parents of needy children and the members who paid special attention to the children at the Christmas party.

"Is the exchange of Christmas cards overdue?" was the subject assigned to Henry Spearbraker, who expressed his belief that such is not the case. Christmas is a time for sentiment and remembrance and the manner in which the exchange of cards increases annually shows that the sentiment is a worthy one and should be continued, Mr. Spearbraker concluded.

The prospects for business in 1932 are excellent, stated J. F. Bentz. Especially is this true in the automobile business. F. E. Lovell stated that only recently he had learned that more orders had been received by the Four Wheel Drive company of Clintonville than during any period during wartime.

A. L. Severance, called upon to tell what he expects to do on New Year's eve was indefinite and non-committal. He stated that his plans are not settled and that he hesitated to announce them because often the plans did not run true to schedule. Harold Zaig talked briefly on the commercialism of Christmas.

NEW LONDON SOCIETY

New London—The Christmas party of the Dorcas society of the Methodist church will be held at the home of Mrs. E. E. Therns, Beaconer, on Thursday afternoon. A short business session will be followed by a program, which will be featured by the exchange of gifts.

Mrs. E. E. Therns is hostess at the annual Christmas party given this afternoon at her home for the Juvenile Royal Neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Holmes entertained Sunday afternoon at their home. Four tables of schafkopf were played, prizes being won by Mr. and Mrs. William Schreweide, Mrs. Frances Melhardt and Clayton Holmes.

A dinner for a party of friends who attended school together was held at the Red Geranium Tea room Saturday night. Those present included Mrs. Otto Krueger, Wausau; Mrs. Robert Gardner, Racine; Mrs. Curtis Coe, Factoryville, Pa.; Mrs. William Heinemann, Sheboygan; Mrs. Ben Hartquist, Mrs. C. E. Reuter, Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald, Mrs. E. J. Bentz, Miss Isma Stofor, Mrs. E. C. Diller of this city. Following the dinner the guests were entertained at the home of Miss Stofor.

SLIGHT PROFIT FROM ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

New London—The annual poultry show sponsored by the Rotary club on Dec. 15, 17 and 18, will show a slight margin on the credit side, officers report. What this margin will amount to has not yet been announced by the president, R. J. McMahon, but although the amount is not large, it will be appreciably increased by whatever amount is made by the state. This amount is based on the number of shows given in the state and depends much upon the number of entries made.

Money realized from poultry shows cannot be used for any other purpose than for the promotion of future shows. Mr. McMahon points out. The poultry association in this city is incorporated as a non-profit organization. Its accounts are kept separate from those of other club activities and no club benefits or other activities can be promoted through money realized in any show. The amount to be gained through state appropriation will not be learned until April.

PLASTERING WORK IS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

New London—Under the direction of the contractors in charge of plastering and terrazzo work on the interior of the new high school building, work is ahead of schedule. According to the contract this interior finishing was supposed to begin on or after Feb. 1. In reality, however, it began two months ago. The fact that there have been no setbacks caused by inclement weather or delay in arriving at materials needed has aided the workmen in keeping well ahead of the building program.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"I wish my old man was just rich enough that I wouldn't have anything to do but go around causing him trouble."

Fishermen Are Making Good Catches On Fremont Waters

Fremont—During the holiday season this year Fremont is experiencing the mildest kind of below normal weather for years. The Wolf river which usually is frozen over by Thanksgiving day hasn't any ice along the shores. Partridge lake is covered in parts with a couple inches of ice. There are only scattering patches of less than an inch of snow in the country fields.

A score of fishermen are present daily on the mill bayou catching pickerel through its four inches of ice. The anglers outfit includes a maximum of five "tipups," two short pieces of wood, crossed and fastened, with three to five feet of line attached and shiner minnows as bait hooked so that they swim below the surface of the ice holes.

CHURCHES PLAN SERVICES FOR NEW YEAR'S DAY

Masses to Be Sung at Usual Time in All Catholic Churches

The week's church activities will be restricted pretty much to New Year's Eve and New Year's day services, some with Holy Communion, and watch night parties. Masses will be sung at the usual time in the Catholic churches on New Year's day, and in the Lutheran churches there will be services both Thursday evening and Friday morning.

Because a holy day falls on Friday, Catholics will be permitted to eat meat, as was the case on Christmas day.

"Music in Bethlehem," a cantata, was given by the choir of First English Lutheran church at the regular Sunday morning service. The Rev. F. C. Reuter, preached on "When Christmas Abides in the Heart." In the evening the Reuter family attended the celebration in honor of the twenty-fifth ordination of the Rev. I. Wegner at DePere. New officers will be installed next Sunday, and the annual business meeting will be held on Jan. 10. The New Year's day service will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning. The Senior League met Monday evening.

A candlelight service will be conducted by the young people of St. John Evangelical church at 7:30 Thursday evening. A German service will be held at 10:15 New Year's day. A Christmas service was held Sunday, with the Rev. W. R. Wetzel preaching on "A New Life in the World."

Going to Conference

Dr. L. D. Utts will attend a conference of workers with college students in Chicago this week. There will be no New Year's eve service at All Saints Episcopal church, but the bells will ring at midnight, and at 9 o'clock Friday morning there will be a Holy Communion service.

The Choir School was entertained at a party at Hamar house Monday evening, and troop 15, Boy Scouts, will hold a holiday party at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday afternoon. The annual parish meeting will be held Jan. 11. Dr. Utts preached Sunday on "Life's Bitterness," pointing out that in spite of any lethargy, bitter or sad effects of the recent holiday, one must meet the issues of 1937 with courage and love, putting first things first.

A watch night devotional service will be held at the Methodist church from 10 to 12 New Year's eve, and the same evening the Sunday School class taught by C. C. Bailey will hold a New Year party at the Bailey home.

The annual business meeting of Emmanuel Evangelical church will be held at 10 o'clock New Year's morning, following a devotional service at 9 o'clock. The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary society will be held at 2:30 Thursday afternoon. The Rev. Philip Schneider conducted the Holy Communion service Sunday morning, and in the evening the Christian Endeavor had charge of the program. Shigeto Tsuru of Nagaya, Japan, gave an address.

Observe Prayer Week

Prayer week is being observed at First Reformed church this week. A prayer service will be held at 7:30 Wednesday evening, and there will be no New Year's day service in English at 9 o'clock. Members were welcomed at the Holy Communion service at 10:15 Sunday morning. The Rev. E. F. Franz preached on "Being Prepared."

The young people of the Baptist church will hold a watch night party New Year's eve. The Rev. Ernest Hasselblad preached Sunday morning on "After Christmas What?" With a reflective look at Christmas, he pointed out the things that should be carried through the new year. In the evening he preached on the "Zest for Life," a New Year's message.

A German service will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening at Zion Lutheran church, and on Friday evening at 9 o'clock, and one in German at 10:15. Holy Communion was administered Sunday morning at a German service at 10:35, and at an English service at 7 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Theodore Marth preached on "The Shepherd and the Sheep." The German service, a theological student, preached at the English service in the morning.

The New Year's services at St. Paul Lutheran church will be held in the basement of the church, as the redecoration of the church proper has already started. There will be a German Holy Communion service at 7:30 Thursday evening, and an English Communion service at 9 o'clock Friday morning. There also will be a German service at 10:15 Friday morning. The Rev. F. M. Brandt preached Sunday on "Who a True Disciple of Jesus Is."

No Choir Meetings

The choir of the Congregational church will not meet this week. The music circle of the Congregational church sponsored a recital Sunday afternoon, and in the evening the Choral club gave a program. "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley" was the feature of the moving picture service in the evening. Next Sunday "Lonesome" will be presented.

Holy Communion will be administered at a German service at St. Matthew church at 7:45 Thursday evening, and at an English service at 10:10 Friday morning. The Rev. Philip A. C. Froelike preached Sunday on "Thanks Be to God for His Unspeakable Gift."

Two English Holy Communion services will be held this week at Mount Olive Lutheran church, one at 7:30 Thursday evening, and another at 10:15 Friday morning. New officers were installed Sunday morning. The Rev. R. E. Gieseler preached on "What Does God Expect of All Church Officers?"

Holy Communion will be celebrated next Sunday at Memorial Presbyterian church. Sunday morning the Rev. R. A. Garrison preached on "Another Chance."

Bible history of Believers will be the subject of the Bible study service. Full Gospel tabernacle Thursday evening, after which there

Christmas Spirit Enlivens Society In Washington, D. C.

BY DOROTHEA J. LEWIS (Post-Crescent's Washington Society Editor)

Washington, D. C.—The national capital had itself quite a holiday time last week, and Badgers in the capital played their part in both gala affairs and quiet family Christmas masses.

Young Leslie and Lorraine Schaefer, children of Rep. and Mrs. John C. Schaefer of Milwaukee, and Marjorie and William Reed, grandchildren of Rep. and Mrs. John Mandt Nelson of Madison, were among the thrilled youngsters attending a White House Christmas party Wednesday.

Mrs. Mark Troxell, dean of women at the University of Wisconsin, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Kittle, formerly of Madison, during Christmas week.

Sunday evening, Dec. 27, Mr. and Mrs. Kittle entertained Mrs. Troxell and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith, formerly of Merrill, at dinner. They dined on Christmas day with a group of other Wisconsin people as guests of Miss Whitcomb of the Department of Education. They were guests at a recent dinner given in honor of Sen. and Mrs. Edward P. Costigan of Colorado.

Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Dwight of Racine entertained at a Christmas dance for her sub-deb daughter, Miss Mary Isabel Dwight, at the Mayflower hotel.

Changes in the Dwight's plans have caused cancellation of their proposed holiday trip to Quebec for the winter sports.

M. E. Walker of Racine, a recent visitor in Washington has returned to Wisconsin.

Rep. Michael Reilly of Fond du Lac spent his Christmas at home.

Miss Lucille Pomarane, formerly of Oshkosh, passed part of the holiday season in New York.

Rep. and Mrs. John Nelson of Madison had Mr. and Mrs. Standall with them for Christmas dinner.

Miss Sylvia Meyer, daughter of Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Balthasar Meyer of Madison, took part in the first Christmas eve service at one of the oldest churches in Washington. The actual church itself, the Georgetown Presbyterian church is not so old but the congregation dates back almost to the beginning of Georgetown and Washington.

One of the gayest affairs of the whole gay week was the Midshipmen and Cadet ball on Christmas night. Among the many patrons was Mrs. George East, widow of General Barnett of Boscobel, the wartime commander of the Marines. Douglas Hartman of Watertown visited New York last week.

Children and grandchildren of members of the Congressional club will dress up and play and dance and see movies and eat Christmas sweets and generally have a grand time on Monday, Dec. 28, at the costume party arranged for them at the club. Mrs. John C. Schaefer of Milwaukee is chairman of the program. Naturally, Santa Claus with his bag of gifts will be there.

A second event of the Club's Christmas season will be the sub-deb tea dance on Tuesday.

Miss Mary Isabel Dwight was one of the guests entertained at luncheon last Monday by Mrs. Malcolm will be a watch night service. The sermon subject Sunday morning was God's Purpose, and in the evening, Grace.

Dr. L. D. Utts will attend a conference sponsored by the Student Volunteer movement of the Northwest province in Chicago this week. About 600 clergymen working with college students will attend the interdenominational meeting at the University of Chicago. Wednesday evening all registrants will be guests at the performance of Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures."

Matheson in honor of her daughter, Julia Torrey Matheson.

Miss Rachel Davies chose the Christmas season to return from Europe where she spent three months, much of her time being taken up as a junior hostess at the American Exhibit in the French Colonial Exposition at Paris. Mr. Davies is still abroad and plans a trip to Egypt before his return.

Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, formerly of Madison, also had another daughter, Mrs. Thomas Patton

RIFLE ASSOCIATION PLANS YEAR'S EVENTS

Racine—(AP)—The Wisconsin Rifle association recently organized by the Wisconsin American Legion has planned a year-around program of rifle matches, according to Fred Ruffolo, Racine, director of marksmanship for the legion.

The association, Mr. Ruffolo said, intends to organize rifle clubs in all parts of the state, with a league in each congressional district.

A state individual match will be conducted Aug. 7, 1932 to select the Wisconsin civilian team for the national matches to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 24 to Sept. 12. This will be the first time since 1919 that a Wisconsin team competes, Ruffolo said.

Six league club matches for district championships, three inter-district matches for the state championship; four team matches for the state championship; six individual gallery postal matches for the state title and five individual home high power matches for the state championship are among the events planned for the year 1932.

The association, Mr. Ruffolo said, intends to organize rifle clubs in all parts of the state, with a league in each congressional district.

A state individual match will be conducted Aug. 7, 1932 to select the Wisconsin civilian team for the national matches to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 24 to Sept. 12. This will be the first time since 1919 that a Wisconsin team competes, Ruffolo said.

Six league club matches for district championships, three inter-district matches for the state championship; four team matches for the state championship; six individual gallery postal matches for the state title and five individual home high power matches for the state championship are among the events planned for the year 1932.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION PLANS YEAR'S EVENTS

Racine—(AP)—The Wisconsin Rifle association recently organized by the Wisconsin American Legion has planned a year-around program of rifle matches, according to Fred Ruffolo, Racine, director of marksmanship for the legion.

The association, Mr. Ruffolo said, intends to organize rifle clubs in all parts of the state, with a league in each congressional district.

A state individual match will be conducted Aug. 7, 1932 to select the Wisconsin civilian team for the national matches to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 24 to Sept. 12. This will be the first time since 1919 that a Wisconsin team competes, Ruffolo said.

Doctor Treats Patients In Far North Through Wireless

Ottawa, Ont. —(P)—Dr. F. S. Parley of Ottawa, has one of the widest-ranged and strangest medical practices in the world. He never sees his patients. His patients never receive bills. All his diagnosing and treatment is done by wireless. Seated behind a desk in an ordinary business office, Dr. Parley cares for his patients, scattered through the far north. His field, extending thousands of miles, from Akavik to Cape Chidley, is limited only by the power of wireless. Dotted throughout the north at government meteorological and radio stations, Royal Canadian Mount-

SUNSET PASS by Zane Grey

SYNOPSIS: Mystery at Sunset Pass entangles Thiry Preston, and throws grave suspicion on her brother Ash and her father, Gage Preston, but Trueman Rock determines to solve it and save Thiry. Rock has taken work with the Prestons to be near Thiry, but she begs him to leave, fearing Ash's anger.

Chapter 18
TWO KINDS OF GUNMEN

"O H, Ash didn't always come out scot-free. But nothing to bother him. I don't believe Ash has nerves or heart or feeling."

"Yet you love him!" ejaculated Rock, bitterly.

"I do—more because I seem the only one. But it's not so much that. I've kept him from going to the bad."

"How could he be any worse?" asked Trueman, incredulously.

"Oh, he could be. You don't know—you can't understand. But I do."

"Miss Thiry, have you been so vastly concerned for the good health of all these poor loveless cowboys as you seem about mine?" asked Rock.

"You are sarcastic again. Oh, you're not so nice as I thought you'd be. . . . Yes, I was concerned—worried about these boys. But I've never been so—so scared as I am over your coming."

"Scared—for me?"

"Yes, for you—a little. Oh I can't lie to you. I'm scared because of the harm that may come—if you stay."

"A little! How nice of you! All you think of is poor dear Brother. For my face to be beat to a jelly or my leg shot off or worse—that causes you only a little concern. Thanks, Miss Preston. I'm beginnin' to believe I idealized you rather high."

"You're perfectly horrid!" she cried passionately. "Yes, indeed, you must have idealized me beyond my merits."

Rock leaned closer to study the lovely face, the deep eyes that flamed at him yet tried to hide true feelings. He could speak bitter words, but was instantly full of remorse. Yet how sweet to hurt her.

"Look me straight in the eyes," he said suddenly. "You can't—you can't."

"Why—you—certainly. I can," she returned, startled. And she did, gravely.

"You said you couldn't lie?" queried Rock, cruelly.

"I never told—a—black lie in my life," she faltered, with her head lifting.

"Then—are you honest with me? What is the reason you want me to run off like a coward?"

"I've been trying to tell you," she replied, hastily ignoring his first query, which he saw had made her start. "But I don't want you to be a coward. I'd think it brave, generous, to help me. I told you and I tell you again harm, terrible harm, might come of this, if you stay. Ash will not try and of his tricks on you. For you are different."

"Why, my dad said to me, not an hour ago. There, ass is a cowboy whose face Ash won't rub in the dirt. An' he won't be throwin' guns around so careless. For, Thiry, this fellow, True Rock, is a different kind of a hombre from all those Ash has stacked up against. . . . Those were Dad's very words. I was thunderstruck. It seemed almost as if Dad was glad. I never saw him speak like that. And lightning flashed from his eyes. Oh, this spurred me to speak with you. Can't you see? You are different. You're a man—and one with a—a—please forgive—a bloody record. I don't despise you because of that. Mr. Winter told me of your meeting with that vile Pickins. That same Pickins was once an enemy of father's. Since I've lived West I've learned there are bad gunmen and good gunmen. My brother Ash is one kind—you are the other."

"Thiry Preston, first you are cruel then you are kind," replied Rock, hoarsely. "If you want to drive me away I advise you to keep on belin' cruel."

"You wouldn't stay here—with us—and leave me alone?" she asked, with a simplicity wholly free of vanity.

What is Thiry hiding? Rock tries a random shot, to learn the truth, tomorrow.

Glenn Thistlethwaite Quits As Wisconsin Football Coach

RESIGNATION PRESENTED TO SPORTS COUNCIL

Steps Aside to Permit Freedom of Action in Reorganization Plans

BY E. L. ALLEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
MADISON—(AP)—Glenn Thistlethwaite, head football coach at the University of Wisconsin since 1927, has followed in the footsteps of athletic director George Little by resigning his post.

The resignation of the coach was made public after an executive meeting of the athletic council last night. The council accepted it and voted to recommend acceptance to President Glenn Frank and the board of regents. The same action was taken on Director Little's resignation.

Director Little presented his resignation Dec. 14. Thistlethwaite's resignation, contained in a letter to Prof. J. E. A. Pyre, chairman of the council, reads as follows:

Leaves June 30
"In order to permit complete freedom of action on the part of the athletic council in its reorganization plans, as affecting intercollegiate sports at the University of Wisconsin, I desire to place in your hands for presentation to the council at its next meeting, my request to be relieved of the duties of head football coach, effective June 30, 1932."

Although Thistlethwaite had declined on several occasions an intention to resign, it was expected that the adverse criticism to which he has been subjected would result in the choosing of a new coach for next year. Hope that he would be retained for at least another season was virtually dispelled when Little resigned. The director had been the coach's chief defender when certain alumni were demanding a new coach at the close of the 1930 season.

The athletic council's determination to make extensive changes in the athletic department was one of the reasons for Coach Thistlethwaite's decision to resign, he told newspapermen last night. He expressed the opinion that the wide publicity given to the athletic troubles at Wisconsin had created a situation that would put him under an extreme psychological handicap in coaching future teams here.

Came From Northwestern
Little induced Thistlethwaite to come here five years ago after the latter had been Northwestern's coach for the Western conference championship. Neither has accepted a position elsewhere, but Little said he expects to resume his old role of professor of physical education rather than continue as an athletic director or coach.

The athletic council made no announcement as to the successors of Little and Thistlethwaite. In view of the necessity for economy in the athletic department, due to decreased football receipts, it is expected the council will recommend the merger of the posts of athletic director and football or basketball coach.

Teams coached by Thistlethwaite at Wisconsin won 10, lost 14 and tied two conference games in five years. The 1929 Badgers beat Purdue, the 1930 team won 10, lost 10 and tied one game. Thistlethwaite's 1928 team lost only to Minnesota, tied Purdue and defeated Michigan, Chicago and Iowa as well as Alabama, Notre Dame and Cornell college in non-conference games.

In 1929, the Badgers won only one conference game, losing four, and in 1930, they won two, lost as many and tied one.

Following the 1930 season that agitation for Thistlethwaite's removal began. During the 1931 season he was regarded as being on trial and when the Badgers won three and lost three conference games the agitation was rekindled. Little's request that Thistlethwaite be retained was answered affirmatively by the athletic council at the close of the season, but during the past month it was learned he had shifted ground and had asked the council for a new coach.

Graduate of Earlham
Thistlethwaite is a graduate of Earlham college, Richmond, Ind., where he played tackle on the football team and captained the 1903 squad. In addition to being an athlete he excelled in scholarship, being awarded honors of Phi Beta Kappa. After a year as coach at Illinois college, Jacksonville, Ill., he returned to Earlham as head coach from 1903 to 1913. He succeeded Robert Zuppke as coach at Oak Park (Ill.) high school and thereafter became mentor at Northwestern university.

While the athletic council has worked over plans for the proposed reorganization of the athletic department and the question of shifting the personnel, the state legislature has had a special committee investigating the entire athletic situation at the university. The legislative committee held two meetings and is scheduled to reopen its investigation within a week.

GLENN THISTLETHWAITE

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

The following editorial is from the Milwaukee Journal, a few days ago, and put in plain talk the sum and substance of the argument going on down at Madison.

Wisconsin's Football
"WISCONSIN'S university fails to turn out winning football teams because it does not push the recruiting of high school boys and will not lower its scholastic standards for athletes. This is the conclusion of a professor of long standing and close contact with the athletic situation, in an interview in The Journal."

"That statement contains a good deal for consideration in the reorganization of the athletic department, that is now supposed to be taking shape. The university professes to be a professor of long standing and close contact with the athletic situation, in an interview in The Journal."

ABILITY TO WIN ON ROAD HELPED CARDS
Playing Site Meant Very Little to National League Champions
BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer
New York—(AP)—Ability of the St. Louis Cardinals to maintain their winning ways on the road proved the deciding factor in their dash to the 1931 national league pennant, official figures released by league headquarters reveal.

The playing site meant little to the champions who set an even pace all the way, with a winning percentage of .592 on their home lot and .618 on foreign soil.

The New York Giants, who finished second in the race, however, had a percentage of .649 at the Polo Grounds and .493 on the road with 37 wins and 48 losses.

Four other clubs, Chicago, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, played winning ball for the home folks but fell down disastrously on tour. Cincinnati and Boston played no favorites, losing with equal facility anybody's park.

Other assorted figures divulged by the league statisticians show the Chicago Cubs were the leading sluggers, drew the most bases on balls and suffered the most strikeouts. Rogers Hornsby's wreckers had a slugging percentage of .422, getting almost one base for every two times at bat. They knocked in the most runs, 785, drew 577 bases on balls and were struck out 411 times.

Among the individual stars, Chuck Klein of the Phillies was the most consistent in hitting for extra bases. He hit for a total of 347 bases and a slugging percentage of .534. Hornsby was second with 574 and Chick Hefner of the Cardinals hit with 569. Ten players were over the .500 mark.

Recent meetings of the state legislature have shown Wisconsin always opposed first honors and Marquette always was second with any one of the other schools. Lawrence, Ripon, Carroll, Beloit or one of the normals trailing. Coaches felt only their best men could enter and that while the meet filled the bill for the big schools, the smaller ones would have been better off with a dual meet with someone.

The 1929 and 1931 meets were held at Madison. The 1930 meet was at Milwaukee and the 1932 meet was supposed to have gone there.

PHIL BALL DROPS HIS SUIT AGAINST LANDIS

St. Louis—(AP)—Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns and the Milwaukee Brewers, today announced he had instructed counsel to withdraw suit in the United States circuit court of appeals at Chicago in the case of Fred Bennett, Milwaukee outfielder, testing authority of Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner.

Ball said this was done "at the request of the American league and particularly at the request of Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, and Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox."

Federal Judge Walter Lindley had held Landis' suit within his authority in declaring Bennett a free agent after the Browns had farmed him out to Milwaukee.

Omaha, Neb.—Tommy Grogan, Omaha, knocked out Joe Rivers, Cedar Rapids, Ia. (S).

STURGEON bowlers in the Knights of Columbus league won two games last night and moved into first place in league standings. Three teams, the Pike, Perch and Whale are tied for second honors, one game behind the leaders.

H. Tillman rolled a 203 for the Sturgeons in the first game but it was lost in the second. H. Otto hit 222 and in the third Tillman's 206 won. Tillman had high series score of 594.

Pike dropped out of the league lead by losing three games to the Trout in the first game. The Trout rolled 188 for the Herring, a 172 in the second and Treiber a 169 in the third.

Whales moved into a tie for second place with a three game win over the Mackerel. E. Walters showed 618 in the first win, Fassbender 181 in the second, and J. Haug 189 in the third. The Whale 131 to 56 hand in the fourth.

Perch dropped the first two games and won the last game with a 203 by Heisl.

Pickel made good use of a 172 to 84 handicap and downed the Salmon in two games. J. Schneider rolled 162, 163, 172-497 for the Salmon.

GAME NEEDS NO DEFENSE, GRID COACHES TOLD

NEW YORK—(AP)—College football coaches from all parts of the United States, in session to take annual stock of the gridiron sports, were asked today by the declaration of their retiring president, John H. Meehan, that "The game needs no defense."

Meehan's statement, voicing the views of a large proportion of his associates, was accepted as the opening shot in a move by the coaches to check undue attacks or over-zealous attempts to alter football rules because of the extraordinary number of deaths from gridiron accidents in 1931.

None of the coaches sought to minimize the gravity in a situation that has cost the lives of 48 youths. At the same time they were not prepared to recommend any radical changes in the rules.

Stricter enforcement of some of the existing regulations, especially with reference to use of hands, was regarded by most coaches as the vital factor.

Meehan took the leadership today in an attempt to bring several controversial subjects into the open. In his farewell presidential address, prepared for delivery at the opening session of the American Football coaches' association, Meehan expressed himself strongly in favor of spring training.

"Give Coach Time"
"Possibly one way to lessen the injuries and reduce the number of fatalities," he said, "is to be fair with the boys themselves and to allow the coach more time to teach his squad more thoroughly the fundamentals of the game. A boy should be allowed to enjoy responsible spring practice."

Pre-season practice should be sufficient also to allow the coach ample time to get his team in condition for his first major contest. Let us consider the boys and not waste so much time talking about this over-emphasis.

"We realize that the education of the youth is paramount. In our respective institutions, our teams comply with both the entrance and eligibility requirements. Therefore, the responsibility of a football program rests with the institution itself."

"The game needs no defense and the game's value to the American youth will assert itself more than ever in the years to come."

Consistently missing at today's gathering was the personal influence of one of the association's greatest spokesmen in former, disturbing passed—Knute Rockne. The coaches planned to honor Rockne's memory in the annual meeting as well as at the banquet held tonight in the "Brown Derby" story-telling contest, a favorite outlet for the wit of the wizard of Notre Dame.

Tale will furnish the coaches' association's past chief executive, Dr. J. Stevens, head coach of the Elms, headed the state as the nominee for president to succeed Meehan.

Coaches' Report Reveals Football Takes Less Time Than Most Other Sports

NEW YORK—(AP)—In answer to charges that football is over-emphasized, a special committee that has studied the question a full year presented a blanket denial to the Football Coaches' association today. From a mass of figures compiled on the basis of the answers of 47 universities and 173 vocation colleges to a questionnaire, Lou Little, of Columbia university, head of the committee of five, drew this conclusion:

Not Over-Emphasized
"It is the opinion of the committee that the information obtained indicates that football is not over-emphasized. That it may be over-emphasized in some institutions, we do not deny but to condemn the game because too much attention is paid to it in a few institutions is manifestly unfair and unjust."

"It would be just as sensible to condemn a religious or political institution in its entirety because some officials was lax in the performance of its duty."

The committee, consisting of Lou Little, University of Florida, John H. Meehan, Kansas State, Nathan K. Pearson, and Paul Schuchman, of the State of New York, was appointed at the last meeting to examine the situation statistically. Analysis of the questionnaires, the committee reported, brought out these facts:

Ranks 16th in Time
That on a list of time devoted out of the regular season, football ranks 16th, behind such sports and activities as swimming, lacrosse, golf, golf, track, boxing, wrestling, chess, club, and basketball among others.

That on a basis of week, only football and track cover shorter periods.

That in length of daily practice football starts fifth behind golf, basketball, lacrosse and baseball.

That in the number of enforced practices, team games, football ranks 16th.

Standings of football players as revealed from the universities showed that in practically every case athletes are as high if not higher than the general average.

One of the most interesting features of the report were the answers of 173 football captains to a set of 20 questions.

As to over-emphasis 173 said there was none, 13 said there was and 54 said "in some places." Reasons for playing football disclosed that 44 played "because I like it," 23 for educational reasons, "Guns build character," "Football is a manly game," "Preparation for life," and only three did not like the game and two frankly responded "I played for a scholarship."

Neenah has played but one game this year and it was a victory over the St. Mary high five of Menasha.

ROCKET GYM IS SCENE OF GAME; PEOTTER HURT

Center's Injured Knee May Not Permit Him to Play Until Next Week
BASKETBALL rivalry that has existed for many, many years will be resumed tomorrow evening at Neenah high school gym when Appleton and Neenah clash for the first time this season.

Last year the two schools clashed in two games, Appleton losing the first by a fair margin but battling like a wounded tiger to steal away with the second, the game featuring a wild finish in the last period when a shot of wild west movies, Appleton led by a big margin at the end of the first half and then blew the advantage like an inflated sail at the start of the first time in six weeks.

As the game reached its last minute the two quartets moved up and down the floor like a battalion of wild men, hussies and snobs, milled the center of the court, gasping for breath, when the final whistle sounded and Appleton drew the nod.

Have Name Squads
The teams that faced that thriller at Neenah will take the floor tomorrow night almost man for man. Neenah will have one new face, Owens, who replaces Schmidt, the latter tentatively being the youngster who took his place in the running last year with some sensational individual work.

Neenah's five also is the team they went to the state tournament at Madison last spring and battled through to meet Racine Washington Park high for the title. In other words, Coach Ole Jorgenson again has a brand ball club.

A tall, lanky youngster will jump the center position. The two guards will be E. Neenah, a performer and P. H. last year a new comer at Neenah but one of the best guards Coach Jorgenson has ever turned out. The forwards will be Owens and Haire.

Neenah has played but one game this year and it was a victory over the St. Mary high five of Menasha. The score was 39 and 19.

Overscored and overworked field goals in the game. Both centers bring up three and both guards, registered nine times. All of which means that Coach Jorgenson has some scoring plays and the boys know how to use them.

Peotter on Bench
Appleton will be weakened for tomorrow's game by the absence of Bill Peotter, center, who, Coach Jorgenson says, will stay on the bench as his back knee can heal by next week. Bill Valley conference games are resumed.

What remains to be seen is the Orange coach will send against the Rockets is a question. However, Mortell will jump center, he probably will play the position, but letting Bobby Rule or Jim Murphy play guard. Should Rule play guard, Howard Bortley will center as forward.

The Orange is an undefeated record for the season to defend tomorrow but just now doesn't care much about it. The injury to Peotter has hurt chances of a win but because the game is not a conference battle no one cares.

Second years from the two schools will probably play the twin rivalry.

LAWRENCE CAGERS RESUME PRACTICE

Coach Denney Rounds Up Appleton and Neenah Members of His Team

The handful of Lawrence college basketball men who live in Appleton and the Fox river valley probably will be chasing the leader in his farewell presidential address, prepared for delivery at the opening session of the American Football coaches' association, Meehan expressed himself strongly in favor of spring training.

There are several youngsters who live in Appleton and Neenah who probably haven't anything to do during the holidays and would just as soon practice. Working on that assumption, Coach Denney will ask them to work out a few hours.

Among the boys are Bill Hosts a guard, Willis Haase, Neenah, another guard, Benney Bath, center and forward, and Mike Goehner, guard.

Regular practice sessions with all men present will start Saturday, Jan. 2, giving Coach Denney a chance to work a full day with his proteges. Monday regular school sessions are resumed and Denney will drill the boys every evening.

The first game of the new year still is a question. Denney would like to meet Stevens Point Teachers coached by his old pupil, Eddie Kotal. However, the game hasn't received official sanction just yet.

Conference competition will open on Monday evening, Jan. 11 when the Vikings go to Ripon to battle Red Marlin's latest edition, The Crimson will open its regular season on Jan. 7 with Beloit college at Ripon.

Cleveland, O.—(AP)—As familiar as an old shirt—that about sizes up next season's edition of the Cleveland Indians club.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh will have all his Indians back as they did last year with but one or two minor exceptions.

General Manager Billy Evans came through the winter dark, berserk and his principal stock in trade, outfielders Eddie Moran and Bud Patten, failed to bring an acceptable offer, although they have been in the club for three years.

Manager Peckinpaugh plans next season to start Bruce Campbell, New Orleans product, as first and send Ed to the outfield to fight a new war.

Ed Austin, who batted .372 and hit 22 home runs, and Joe Vrakas, batted .317 and hit 10, should have plenty of work to do.

With the exception of Wes Ferrell, Willie Hader and Mel Harder, the Cleveland pitching staff was a general disappointment last year. These three regulars were the only ones to reach .500. Ferrell pitched excellent ball to win 32 games and lose 12.

Two recruit right-handers will start next season and may give the mound more needed stiffening. The most promising is Oral Hildebrand who came up from Indianapolis at the end of the season. The other is Mont Pearson, purchased from Oakland of the Pacific coast league.

VINES AND LOTT IN CHARITY NET GAME
Chicago—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, the national singles tennis champion, and George Lott, who lost to him in the 1931 finals at Forest Hills, will meet again tonight in the Chicago Stadium.

The Vines-Lott battle will head a charity campaign, involving also John Van Ryn and Frank Shields, who will meet at singles. Lott and Van Ryn, winners of the doubles at Wimbledon last summer, will meet Vines and Shields in the third attraction.

Manhattan College Takes Meehan As Sports Head

BY LAWRENCE PERRY
Copyright 1931
NEW YORK—(AP)—One of the influential reasons why Chick Meehan signed a contract to coach football and conduct intramural sports at Manhattan college in this city was the fact that in the course of his playing at the New York University he went into business as a contractor. The business lies in the metropolis and in view of its present condition and its prospects, he would have been a foolish boy to have let it drop in favor of a coaching contract calling for services any distance away from his main chance.

It will be interesting to watch Manhattan's future career. The understanding is that the college does not, with Meehan's association, intend to go in for "big time" football. But it would like to play the best possible football that is played in its class, and with Meehan at the helm it is likely to realize this ambition. Not only that, it is likely in the future to make trouble for any of the big fellows who in the preliminary season are looking for "breather" contests.

A demand upon a coach that he do the best he can with the material that flows naturally into an institution.

Q. Can you tell me the year in which the pitchers were permitted to deliver the ball to the batter if they kept their pitching motion under their shoulders. I mean when was underhand pitching also permitted?

A. In 1853.

Q. Is it possible for a major league player to retire if he is not satisfied with his contract?

A. Yes. However, he cannot play with any other club in organized baseball until he is technically reinstated.

MONTANA, PURDUE TO MEET AT LAFAYETTE

Chicago—(AP)—Butler and Loyola, both undefeated this season, will meet in the midweek headline basketball game tonight at Indianapolis. Loyola had a record of six straight, while the bulldogs had triumphed over Pittsburgh, Southern California and Illinois.

Montana State's Barnstormers will meet Purdue's powerful squad at Lafayette, and Nebraska will seek its second victory over a Big Ten opponent at the expense of Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Huskers already have defeated Iowa.

STATE TRACK, FIELD MEET IS ABANDONED

Wisconsin, M. U., College Cinder Stars Won't Gather Next Spring

Announcement from Milwaukee that the Wisconsin State Intercollegiate track and field meet for 1932 has been dropped is another hint that several state college athletic treasuries have been hit by the depression and therefore they are cutting budgets.

However, the abandonment of the state meets which were resumed in 1929 are not entirely a point in favor of the depression. Recent meetings have shown Wisconsin always opposed first honors and Marquette always was second with any one of the other schools. Lawrence, Ripon, Carroll, Beloit or one of the normals trailing. Coaches felt only their best men could enter and that while the meet filled the bill for the big schools, the smaller ones would have been better off with a dual meet with someone.

Pressure of Tax Selling Is Lifted — One to Three Point Gains Recorded

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York (AP)—The stock market today, after sinking close to the bear market of Dec. 17.

The recent pressure of tax selling was lifted, and prices pushed up 1 to 3 points over a fairly broad front. The traditional year-end upturn appeared to have been started by a day earlier than usual.

Rail, chemical, and utilities made notable gains. Issues up 2 to 3 points included New York Central, Santa Fe, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific, American Telephone, North American, Consolidated Gas, American Water Works, Allied Chemical, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Air Reduction, Dupont, U. S. Steel, Eastman, Case, Woolworth, National Biscuit, and others.

Auburn was sent up 8 points. Gains of a point or so appeared throughout the list, and grew fairly lively on the advance.

An upturn in share prices at the end of the year is regarded with high favor by many investment trusts and holding companies, as it means that the market is strong enough to support a new average low in the final week of 1931.

May Halt Deductions
Hints from Washington that the new tax measure may be so framed as to prevent the deduction of losses from sales of securities from 1931 incomes, were regarded in some quarters as a factor in the lifting of the selling.

The federal reserve was liquidation is usually completed before the last few sessions of the year. The fact that the market met support as after coming close to the Dec. 17 bear market lows provided considerable encouragement.

Some market theorists would regard stubborn support at these levels as indicating that the bottom has been reached. The recording of a new average low in the final week of the year would be contrary to the experience of many years past.

Railroad securities were helped by a hopeful attitude in banking quarters over the prospect of an agreement on a wage reduction, as the money market showed further signs of year-end firmness, although call loans again renewed at 3 percent.

The money market showed further signs of year-end firmness, although call loans again renewed at 3 percent. The federal reserve was less actively buying acceptances today.

TONE OF N. Y. CURB MARKET IS FIRMER

Considers With More Active Trading Following Three-day Holiday

New York (AP)—Firm tone coincided with more active trading on the curb market today.

Selling for tax losses appeared to have dried up substantially and with pressure lifted some of the trading favorites were able to narrow recoveries. Gains were sprinkled through all groups.

Specialty stocks took little part in the dealings and some did not open until the session was well advanced. These issues, particularly those in the higher brackets, have been sharply depressed during recent weeks by steady offerings of holdings purchased earlier in the year.

Activity centered in the utilities were small gains predominated during most of the day. Electric Bond and Share turned over in moderate volume, making fractional progress after a period of hesitation.

American Gas, Brazilian Traccon and St. Regis Paper were other firm spots. Associated Gas "A" was somewhat easy.

There was little interest in the oils, although leaders managed to hold about steady. California crude output is diminishing although it is still above the allowable production and east Texas and both Oklahoma and Texas are working to hold down sentiment toward oil.

Industrial shares had improved sufficiently to curtail market offerings. The company's November profit of $1,993 was sharply under that for the same month last year.

LITTLE CHANGE IN LIVESTOCK PRICES

Market Coasts Along on Normal Supplies — Pork Shows Upward Trend

Chicago (AP)—Coasting along on normal supplies with the pork market showing a decided upward trend in the wholesale centers, hog trade showed little change at the outset today.

Offerings of 37,000 carried on 1,200 direct to packers and very few hogs were carried over unsold from the previous day. Bids were easier, especially on hogs weighing over 250 lbs. on which early buyers asked 10 cents discounts, while shippers who were avid buyers on the previous day, were again in the lead for large supplies of 190 to 210 lbs. hogs, bid steady prices.

Early transactions in 160 to 210 lb. hogs ranged from $4.40-$4.50 generally, but there was no reliable bidding on the heavy butchers. Dressed pork prices are $3.00 to $4.00 a cwt. higher than the extreme low point of year reached less than two weeks ago.

Offerings of cattle were about in line with the expectations of the trade, quality continuing plain and sellers were put on their mettle to prevent the accumulation of medium grades or beefers. Fully 2,000 calves arrived, vealer prices having scored another improvement which carried steers to $5.00 to $5.50.

Though packers favored the $5.50-$7.00 range.

Buyers read determination to hold lamb values above the $5.00 line, in the curtailed receipts of live muttons. While the two-day total is larger than last week, volume of offerings showed a definite tapering off and this did much to bring buyers into the market.

GRAIN PRICES RISE AS STOCKS STAGE ADVANCE

Crop Damage Reports in Southern States Aid Bullish Influence

JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago (AP)—Increased activity and much higher prices in grain today quickly accompanied a New upward trend shown by the New York Stock market. Crop damage reports from Hessian fly in winter wheat districts of Indiana and Illinois were a contributing bullish influence.

Forecast of rain or snow over the entire domestic winter and spring wheat belt were current, but no word came of any actual moisture received.

A circumstance pointing in the direction of higher prices was that the amount of wheat on ocean passage to importing countries had been reduced to only enough for a few weeks' supply. Notice was also taken of continued scantiness of domestic receipts of wheat.

The price of premium wheat today showing arrivals of farm less than half as much as a year ago. There were Illinois reports, too, that considerable wheat was so badly infested with Hessian fly that some of the grain was turning yellow.

Emphasizing the bullish effects of persistent unfavorable harvesting and threshing conditions in Argentina were assertions that it was extremely doubtful whether Argentina could supply Europe's wheat needs. These needs, it was contended, would increase steadily as European home grown wheat became absorbed. Meanwhile, a decidedly larger proportion of Australian wheat than usual has been going to China and Japan. Corn and oats received wheat market firmness.

Provisions sagged with hog values.

HILGENBERG IS HIGH IN SHOOT AT GREEN BAY

Breaks 119 Out of 125 Targets to Set Pace in Weekly Event

Kaukauna—Clem Hilgenberg of this city was high gun at the clay bird shoot held at the Green Bay DePere traps Sunday, breaking 119 out of 125 targets. In the 50 bird event Ed Ashley of Green Bay won first place, breaking 49 out of 50. Ira Miller took second place with 47 out of 50. D. C. Hayward of Weyauwega, C. F. Loper, Oshkosh, and Clem Hilgenberg of Kaukauna tied for third place honors with 46 out of 50 targets broken.

In the shoot off of the tie, the marksmen shot at 25 birds each. Clem Hilgenberg and D. C. Hayward again tied, both breaking 24.

Shooting at a second 25 birds to settle the tie, Hilgenberg broke 24 of the targets, while Hayward shot 22.

Other scores in the 50 bird event were: Ray Bodley, Green Bay, 45; 45; Dr. Rulof, Green Bay, 45; Gordon Bent, Green Bay, 43; Ed Bedore, Green Bay, 44; Dr. Powers, Green Bay, 44; Joseph J. Jensen, Kaukauna, 43; George Loper, Oshkosh, 43; Dr. Clark, Oshkosh, 40; and Charles Larson, Waupaca, 45. D. C. Hayward invited the marksmen to a shoot at Weyauwega in January.

Much interest is being shown in the sport, the Kaukauna club having a successful season here under the guidance of Joseph J. Jensen, president. The Kaukauna traps have been the scene of several major shoots here this year.

REPAIR CROSSING NEAR CITY LIMITS

Kaukauna—A crew of men of the Chicago Northwestern Railway Co. Monday were repairing the crossing which intersects Law-st. near the north city limits. With the repair of the crossing, improvement of the intersection of Highways 41 and 55 and County trunk Q is completed. The intersection was widened and paved recently.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
By MARY BLAKE
"CAPRICORN"

If December 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:40 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:15 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:40 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4:40 p. m.

December 30th will be a time of reaping and not of sowing. Seed sown and forgotten will blossom forth into events of importance. That many a big fire is started with small kindling will be plainly demonstrated. The evening hours will bring you luck and friendship!

Self-reliance, ambition and modesty will be the most notable characteristics of the child born on this December 30th. It will be able to accomplish almost anything to which it puts its mind and back. Socially, it will be bright, witty, entertaining and a general favorite.

Born December 30th, you have an adaptable and progressive nature; one which will grow to the demands of circumstance. You will be able to meet success with the same kind of indomitability with which you meet adversity, and they will both sit at your feet from time to time. You will never allow either your hands or your brain to grow soft through non-use.

If you be a man you have vision, business acumen and imagination; your moves are not merely lucky gestures in the dark. Within the home and to your associates, you are a benevolent despot, and your word is not to be gainsaid.

If you be a woman, you will make a doting mother, one fierce for her offspring, yet sweet with them and to them. Unless your children are very strong in character, they will be completely spoiled and selfish, and made so by your own tireless solicitude.

No one will ever be in doubt as to whether or not you are a friend. You are sincere, frank and outspoken, and never guilty of dissimulation. To your enemies, you show a "get-even-spirit," and you usually add interest to your debts. You do not like social life except within your own circle.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO MEET ON WEDNESDAY

Kaukauna—Kaukauna Woman's club will meet at the home of Mrs. H. S. Cooke, Catherine-st. at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. All ladies of the city have been invited to attend the meeting. An exhibit of old photographs and quilts will be given and a program of music and readings will be offered. The musical program and readings will be given by Mrs. John A. Engel and Mrs. H. L. Krieger of Appleton. Refreshments will be served.

HOLIDAY BUSINESS SAME AS LAST YEAR

Volume of Sales Picked Up During Last Few Days Before Christmas

Kaukauna—Christmas business in Kaukauna stores amounted to approximately the same as last year, merchants reported. Business was as good here proportionately as in surrounding cities. Several of the nearby cities reported decreases in holiday business, but the sales here were nearly on a par with the previous year.

Business was slow in starting this year, and the increase in sales did not come until the Monday preceding Christmas, which is several days later than last year. The volume of business the last week was much greater. All of the stores and business places were kept open until 9 o'clock each evening to accommodate the shoppers. Merchants were pleased with the sales, which were not expected to amount to last year's business.

The usual number of exchanges of gifts is being made at the stores.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To quickly end stubborn coughs due to colds, it is important to soothe the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any drugstore, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, saves money, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Reasons for the exchanges are because of wrong sizes, colors, or repetitions of gifts. Few refunds had to be made by the merchants. Extra help was employed at most stores during the last week, a large amount of business being transacted in the evenings.

A large number of the merchants are making plans for the annual mid-winter clearance sales and the pre-inventory sales. These will take place during the next two weeks.

and will be the last step before the annual spring buying of stock.

FRACTURES ARM IN FALL AT RESIDENCE

Kaukauna—Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wheeler, Island-st., fractured his right arm Sunday evening in a fall on an icy porch at his home here. The arm will have to be carried in a cast for several weeks.

Cuticura Healed Pimples of Itching, Burning Nature.

"A few pimples began on my left hand and spread to my wrist. They were red and water used to come from them. They were of an itching, burning nature and seemed to form in rings. The trouble spread to my right hand and wrist, and I kept them bandaged. I had to give up work for several weeks. It was difficult for me to wash my hands and I was unable to sleep."

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample of each. I purchased more and in a month's time I was healed." (Signed) Joseph F. Unger, 122 Ferrine St., Dayton, Ohio.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Talcum 5c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

Home

During The Holiday Season

when all the family is gathered around the fireplace, one actually realizes the value of HOME. Now that the children have returned from the schools, and the grandchildren are also at home, even though it is for a few days, one can not help but feel the real spirit of HOME.

HOME should mean as much to us at all times. There are certain pieces of furniture that you would not part with because of a gift or through heritage they mean a great deal to us.

On the other hand a new piece of furniture added here and there makes a house a HOME. First Furnish Your Home — "It tells what you are."

Christmas Money

May we suggest that you put your Christmas money into a lasting gift, one of furniture? A gift that the whole family can enjoy. We have a good selection and can give prompt delivery on your choice.
